Mr. Mulrooney's Luncheon.
Mr. Kahn Is Not Worried.
Welcome to Brazil.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

JAMES W. GERARD, formerly ambassador to Germany, organized a luncheon yesterday for Commissioner Mulrooney, the newly appointed head of New York's police. Everybody was there, including Otto H. Kahn. He says grand opera by radio is coming, but it will not interfere with the Metropolitan Opera, always needed to create great reputations.

Also, according to Mr. Kahn, who studies this earth and its doings "from Paris to Peking, and from Peking to Rome," there is nothing to worry us.

When the British have temporary hard times they sit still, play a little golf, don't do much.

In America we can't sit still, we have to do something. When stocks refuse to go up we sell them and force them to go down.

After a dull period, it will occur to Americans that they have the United States back of them and they will recover their balance.

Commissioner Mulrooney, a real policeman, discourses interestingly on crime. He says:

"In a murder case you must have one of two things, an eyewitness or a confession.

"With gangsters well organized, witnesses are afraid to testify. The killers do not confess."

The modern killer runs little risk. For $500 he hires a boy 16 or 17 years old, the boy does the shooting, not even knowing the name of the man "put on the spot," or why he is killed.

Racketeers, according to Commissioner Mulrooney, would vanish, if citizens would do their part. As a rule they prefer being blackmailed to defending themselves.

Racketeers and gangsters are miserable cowards, except "when ganged up and armed. A real man could take a chair and beat up half a dozen of them."

Young criminals should be segregated, not confined with older criminals, who teach them all they know.

Capital punishment does no good. "Send the gangster caught carrying a gun, thus proving his intention or willingness to commit murder, to some place just inside the Arctic Circle, where he will do useful hard work for the rest of his life, and you will get results that no electric chair could give."

Commissioner Mulrooney's job: protecting property and life in the world's biggest, richest city, is "a business in itself." He has under him 19,000 men and a department that spends $60,000,000 a year. He is an able citizen.

President-elect Julio Prestes de Albuquerque, of Brazil, coming to visit us, will be welcome everywhere. As head of Brazil's government, he represents a gigantic empire, magnificently typical of wealth and greatness in America.

Larger than the United States, with one water power much more powerful than Niagara, a soil of fertility indescribable, diamond mines whose blue white products surpass all others, and, most important, an intelligent, patriotic, hard-working people, our guest from Brazil speaks for a nation of whose friendship this country may be proud.

What will be the future of a nation 65 times as big as England, its soil 65 times as fertile, with one magnificent plateau 1000 to 3000 feet high, seven times as big as France, and a river so wide you can sail out of sight of land, on fresh water. Brazil, rich, populous, progressive for national defense, relies largely on airships, sure sign of intelligence.

Chicago is proud, and says: "I not only WILL, but DID." Chicago's population in the new census is 3,376,753, an increase of 672,048 in 10 years.

Second among the cities of the nation, Chicago starts on its fourth million. Everybody in Chicago, north, south, west or out on the lake, is sure that New York will be passed and forgotten before long.

To prove it, ticker tape and confetti is showered from windows all over downtown Chicago yesterday.

Wall Street continued its sorrow festival yesterday, stocks dropping, bears using unpleasant rumors in their battle against prices. One rumor concerned a big bank, another dealt with an imaginary attack on the life of the President. Both were falsely so much lying over that great, a few stocks actually rose to high points.

SHARKEY, 197; HAS 9 POUNDS ON GERMAN

By JACK CONWAY

New York, June 12—Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, tipped the scales at 197 pounds when he weighed in this afternoon for his world's title bout with Max Schmeling of Germany in the Yankee Stadium tonight.

Schmeling weighed 188, a pound or so in excess of what boxing experts expected him to weigh.

Dr. Willis Walker, the official examining physician, pronounced Schmeling to be the most nervous heavyweight he has ever examined. His blood pressure was exceptionallyhigh.

"Schmeling looks to be the typically stolid German type," Dr. Walker said, "but apparently this conceals a very high-strung temperament. His blood pressure gives a count of 152-90 as compared with the normal of 120-70. Sharkey was 128-76, only slightly above normal."

"I've examined Sharkey many times before, but he is in the best condition of his career today.

"His reflexes are very sharp, so

Let Us Have All the Facts Concerning the Fairfax; Heroes or Cowards?

The cold bed of the Atlantic is today the grave of more than two score men, women and children, as a result of the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster.

We are enthralled with admiration by the incidents of individual bravery.

Of the sailor who dived to his death in the burning cauldron in the vain hope of saving the life of the woman who was an entire stranger to him.

Of him who shouted "To hell with me; let's get the women" and shortly perished.

Of the marines and soldiers who swept the women back to safety and exposed their lives to the flames.

Of the mother who died believing she had saved her baby. It died later in the hospital.

Of the brave nurses who toyed with death in their efforts to save the lives of others.

Of the naval officer who died with his wife and child.

Their stories will be accounted epics among the rich lore of our Massachusetts mercantile marine from the day of the stout clipper.

But they are mere incidents.

WE MUST KNOW—

WHETHER the officers and crews took the extraordinary precautions which were absolutely essential to safeguard against the disastrous collision amid the dangerous conditions of visibility which existed along the entire coast.

WHETHER the warning signals, customary in a heavy fog, were sounded with regularity or whether the commanders trusted blindly to the caprices of fate.

WHETHER the S O S, that ominous call of distress, was promptly put upon the air or whether the fear of paying salvage money to some itinerant rescuer was more fixedly in the mind of the captain than the destiny of the men and women whom death ultimately claimed in this disaster.

WHETHER the crew acted as becomes brave men in an emergency or whether they were seized with panic and cowardice, leaving the rescue work to the marines and sailors while they seized the lifebelts from terror-stricken women, jammed the lifeboats with their own precious pelts and added to the horrors of the grim event.

We will have investigations of this catastrophe. "Investigation." We almost despise the word; it is used so often to deceive and mislead us; so often but a casual scrutiny, so rarely fruitful of honest results.

Let the government and State officials who are charged with the responsibility explore this frightful tragedy to the very roots.

If there was any reckless disregard for the doom of these people and any cowardice which contributed to the death roll, let us have it; and let those responsible for it meet the punishment which is their due.

If every care which reasonable men would take under the circumstances and every gallantry which we have a right to expect from men of the sea was performed, let us know that, too.

Let us not have another Vestris fiasco in which hundreds perished on a ship which violated every rule of the sea and the investigations of which have produced nothing to this day but reams of meaningless words.

The flaming bodies of the men and women should light the path of duty of the officials who are charged with the responsibility of finding the cause of this sorrowful and calamitous event.

VOTE AGAINST HOOVER ON NAVAL PACT

The vote was 10 to seven, with three members not voting.

A copy of the resolution was transmitted to the President and to Secretary Stimson.

The committee was adopting consideration of the London naval pact until after the Republican national convention.

CAPTAIN AND RADIO MAN OF FAIRFAX GRILLED

Operator Assumes Blame for Not Continuing Calls for Assistance

Despite the fact that no one has been found who heard it, one S O S distress call was sent from the Merchants & Miners liner Fairfax, Capt. Archibald Brooks and his chief radio operator, J. Wesley Geweken, testified today at the disaster inquiry.

In the face of charges that he refused assistance from the coast guard cutter Tampa, only 20 minutes' away from the scene of the disaster, Capt. Brooks also insisted he asked coast guard aid. The coast guard insists it received no such call.

Geweken declared that after sending out the single SOS call his antenna came down. It was repaired within half an hour, however, but then the operator, believing, he said, that danger was past, took it upon himself to send no further SOS's.

According to Geweken, he was not certain whether the SOS went on the air but he was certain that his later commercial messages were being received, because he got replies from ship and shore stations.

Geweken said he had refused aid from the Tampa by sending a message, "All O. K. now," when the Tampa offered assistance.

While the hearing, designed to sift charges of inefficiency on the part of the Fairfax officers and charges of cowardice against part of the crew, was in progress, a search was under way for bodies of others of the 46 who lost their lives Tuesday night in a collision between the Fairfax and the tanker Pinthis.

CAPTAIN OF FAIRFAX SAYS SOS CALLS WERE SENT REPEATEDLY

mander who declared that his offer of assistance to the Fairfax was refused with the terse radio reply, "All fi, K, now."

At the time the Tampa was within 20 minutes of the Fairfax and had she been called to the scene there was a possibility that she might have rescued some of those who leaped into the sea.

Also, it was pointed out, the Tampa, with its well-equipped hospital bay and its capability for speed, could have given the burned and injured better medical care and could have brought the survivors back to Boston much more quickly than did the Fairfax's sister ship, the Gloucester.

SAYS CALLS WERE SENT

While Capt. Brooks and his officers on the Fairfax were testifying at the crash inquiry, word came from Washington that Dickson N. Hoover, chief of the steamboat inspection service, had left for Boston to take personal charge of the investigation.

Throughout his testimony today Capt. Brooks doggedly maintained that SOS calls were sent out, even though he could not explain why none was heard.

He denied, and his subordinate officers denied, that members of the crew had exhibited cowardice or had prevented any passenger from saving himself or herself.

The Fairfax captain asserted that the tanker Pinthis sounded only one blast before the crash came.

So suddenly did the Pinthis loom out of the fog, he said, that he saw the tanker as soon as his lookout. Although he reversed at full speed the ships collided and the tanker exploded.

TRIED TO GET AID

He admitted that it was not until an hour and a half after the collision that he sent word for aid to his sistership, the Gloucester.

If passengers and members of his crew had remained with the ship instead of jumping into the flaming sea, they would have been saved, the liner's captain maintained.

He denied any knowledge of the consigliard cutter Tampa being in the neighborhood and asserted that no vessel could have aided.

After the fire had been extinguished on the liner there was no further danger, he said.

Repeatedly he declared that he had tried to get assistance immediately after the crash. When asked if it was not the custom to request aid from the coast guard in such an emergency, he replied that he had asked such aid but never got it.

According to Comdr. S. V. Parker of the Coast Guard cutter Tampa, in a statement to newspapers, his offer of assistance to the Fairfax while the Tampa was cruising at 20 minutes' run distant, was refused by the Fairfax in a radio message while the flames were still raging.

The liner's captain admitted that the message for help sent to the Gloucester was in code.

Despite reports from passengers to the contrary, made to newspapermen, Captain Brooks asserted that no one complained of delay in receiving first aid for burns.

OINTMENT ALL GONE

He admitted that the supply of ointment for use in case of burns was exhausted on the ship during the first aid treatments and that it was necessary to obtain lard from the galley to treat passengers.

Capt. Brooks was questioned previously by all three members of the inquiry board of steamboat inspectors, made up of Capt. John Stewart, district supervisor; Capt. O. G. Haines and Capt. Charles Lyons.

The hearing room was thronged when the inquiry board took their seats and Capt. Stewart announced that the inquiry was open.

In his announcement Capt. Stewart made an unconscious error which did not go unnoticed, but which he did not bother to correct.

"This is an inquiry," he said, "into the cause of the disaster which happened yesterday. The tragedy was Tuesday night). It is in no sense a trial. So far as we know, nobody has complained as yet. We are to place the blame and responsibility, if possible."

Capt. Brooks of the Fairfax was then called and answered routine questions as to age, residence, training, length of service, his commands and the like, leading up to a few minutes before the collision.

ONE WHISTLE BLAST

It was made evident immediately that the inquiry board was taking little for granted. The sunken Pinthis was referred to invariably as "an unidentified vessel, supposedly the Pinthis."

Capt. Brooks placed the time of the tragic crash at 6:58 p. m. (7:58 p. m. (Daylight Saving Time).

"At 6:56 p. m.," he testified under questioning by Supervisor Stewart, "this unknown vessel loomed half a point on the starboard bow. At the same time I heard one blast of a whistle.

"I ordered my helm hard apart and backed my ship at full speed. I would say some 30 seconds later my vessel collided with the unknown vessel. Immediately the other ship burst into flames and the flames covered my entire vessel from bow to stern.

"I tried to back out of the other vessel, but did not until she sank. I kept backing, then went forward at full speed to keep the flames from spreading by bringing the wind to my starboard. I called all men from quarters to fight the fire and assist passengers.

GOING AT HALF SPEED

"I ordered an SOS sent out immediately after the collision. I gave the order to the chief operator, who passed it to his assistant on watch at that time.

"The assistant sent repeated SOS's until the fire came into his room. The assistant went on deck and found his aerial was down. Then the chief operator and his assistant rigged another one. By that time the fire was under control and the assistant went back and sent an SOS to the Gloucester. The message asked the Gloucester to come at once."

Q. (By Capt. Stewart)—What particular station did you send your SOS to? A.—None in particular.

Capt. Brooks said he had not seen any newspaper article relative to the coast guard cutter Tampa standing by waiting for an SOS.

He testified the liner was proceeding at about half speed with one man on lookout when the crash occurred. Half speed was maintained not only because of the heavy fog, but because the lookout was attempting to pick up the gas and whistling buoy.

After the crash, he declared, no one on the ship prevented any passenger from saving himself or herself.

He did not know, Capt. Brooks said, that the Tampa was in the vicinity and declared that in any event, no vessel could have aided.

NO DANGER

Q.—Wasn't it rather odd, Captain, that you didn't communicate with the Navy Yard when they have vessels at all times ready to render assistance? A.—I gave the orders to the operator.

Q.—Have you a copy of that order here? A.—No, it was a verbal message I gave to the operator.

Q.—How long did the operator continue to send out the S O S? A.—Till he was forced out by the fire—about five minutes.

Q.—Did the message continue after the aerial was fixed? A.—For some time afterward, until we the fire under control.

Q.—What has that got to do with sending out messages, when the safety of a large number of passengers was in danger? A.—There was no danger, after the fire was under control. The ship was not in a sinking condition. I had an examination made and everything was all right.

Q.—How many passengers did you have? A.—Seventy-six.

Q.—How many in the crew? A.—Eighty.

Q.—How many passengers did you turn over alive to the Gloucester? A.—Fifty-six, I think.

Q.—How many passengers lost their lives? A.—Twelve.

Q.—How? A.—Two from burning; the others, I assume, jumped overboard.

Q.—How? A.—They jumped overboard.

Q.—Captain, isn't it the custom in emergency of that kind to request assistance from the Coast Guard? A.—I did.

Q.—How long before you got it? A.—I never got it.

Q.—Didn't the Tampa call you? A.—Yes, the next morning.

Capt. Brooks was questioned by Lyons:

Q.—Can you state the number of passengers missing? A.—Not exactly.

Q.—For what reason did they jump overboard? A.—I presume they came on deck, saw it was in flames and thought it the only thing they could do.

Q.—Do you think they were frightened? A.—I think so.

Q.—Did the engine room crew remain at their stations and perform their duties? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is the lookout report this tanker? A.—Yes.

SAW NO NEGLECT

Q.—But you saw it yourself at the same time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Looking at it now as the accident happened, can you think of anything you could have done to avoid collision? A.—Not a thing in the world.

Walter No. 18 on the Fairfax, name unknown.

Those who died on board the Gloucester or in hospital, were:

DEARBORN, MRS. MAY, of Newton.

CALLS BROADCAST

Q.—You don't know whether he sent them out the U. S. Navy Yard at Portsmouth or the Coast Guard station at Boston? A.—He said he broadcast them, but to no particular station.

Q.—If help had answered your S O S many people might have been saved? A.—Those who jumped overboard would have been safer if they had stayed aboard the Fairfax. The water was afire all around and no ship could have got near.

Q.—Is it your that two who jumped overboard were saved? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then the others had a chance, hadn't they? A.—Those two said they picked up a lifeboat from the tanker.

Q.—When did you first send a message to the Gloucester? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Well, was it within an hour? You ought to know that. A.—Well, about 9 o'clock.

Q.—That was about an hour and a half after the fire broke out? A.—Yes.

At this point Capt. Fred W. Gower of Fall River, representing the owners of the Pinthis, submitted questions to the board to be asked of Capt. Brooks. These questions were relative to the exact location of the accident, and fog conditions.

Chief Officer James G. Hunley of the Fairfax was the next witness. He testified that he was chief officer since June 4. He said he had just relieved the third officer in the pilot house and had stepped on the bridge to listen for a whistling buoy when the crash occurred.

Q. (by Lyons)—Did you hear of any passenger being trampled on? A.—No.

Q.—Who repaired the radio after it was burned down? A.—I saw the chief operator and his assistant repairing it.

Q.—Did you see any navy men repairing it? A.—No; I saw no sailors or marines repairing it.

Q.—What time were the passengers transferred from the Fairfax to the Gloucester? A.—Between 11 o'clock and midnight.

Q.—If the fire lasted only 20 minutes why did the passengers, many of whom were in serious condition—two died in hospitals when they reached the shore—have to wait from 7:30 to midnight before they were transferred from your vessel to the Gloucester? A.—I was taking my orders from the captain.

Q.—What would you have done if you were in command? There was nothing to hinder a transfer before that? A.—No.

Q.—What time did the Gloucester come along side? A.—Between 11 and 11:30 p. m.

Q.—There was no fire around then? A.—No.

Q.—Isn't it the practice when radio wires are down for the chief mate to replace them; that is, on well-regulated vessels? (Laughter.) A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see any boats loaded with passengers? A.—Yes, two.

Q.—How many of the crew were in these boats? A.—I don't know.

Q.—There were some? A.—Yes.

Q.—Two lifeboats would have taken care of all the passengers, wouldn't they? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you give any thought to what the passengers were entitled to in the matter of protection under such serious conditions. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you consult the captain about your views? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you tell him should be done? A.—I reported the fire was under control and the ship was safe.

Q.—Do you know what time the passengers were transferred to the hospital? A.—I know the Gloucester docked about 8 a.m.

Under questioning by Inspector Stewart, Hunley admitted he fixed the time of the crash at 7:03 p. m. by the engineroom log.

Says Fire on Fairfax Was Put Out by the Crew

Chief Officer Hunley, after describing fire drills on the Fairfax, declared that no assistance was rendered the crew by passengers until after the fire was extinguished.

Q.—As chief officer, do you feel that the crew could have handled the fire without outside assistance? A.—Yes.

The witness said the portholes in the vessel were opened for ventilation. After the fire was extinguished, he said, a boat was lowered and a search made for any victims who might have been in the water.

The witness said he was in charge of the watch at the time of the crash.

"I saw the tanker coming across our port bow," he said. "She had no lights as far as I could see. I looked for her running lights to determine her course. The Fairfax was proceeding at a moderate rate."

Q.—Do you think a vessel going at six or seven miles an hour would have time to maneuver out of the way suddenly? A.—No.

Hunley said it was his impression that the tanker was about 150 feet away when he first observed her.

Second Officer W. E. Winder was the next witness. He testified he was asleep in his room and was awakened by the crash.

CREW AT POSTS

The witness said he went on deck and reported for duty at the pilot house, the captain telling him to clear the boats. He said the fire was extinguished in half an hour, after which he made a survey below, including the engine room.

Q.—How do you account for these people being burned? A.—They were in their rooms when the explosion occurred.

The witness said he did not see passengers assist the crew until the fire was out, in fact did not see any passengers on deck until that time. He said he was on deck when the passengers were transferred and that the crew were all at their posts. The witness knew of no trouble with the crew, he said.

C. J. Powell, third officer, was on duty at the time of the collision. He testified that between the dock and Boston Light the ship was stopped several times because of fishing smacks and other craft in her course. Powell, who said he had been at sea 10 years, was questioned closely about the deviations of the compass and the speed advisable for vessels in fog. He gave the maximum speed for any vessel in fog as 10 knots.

The witness said the Fairfax ran slowly until Boston lightship was reached, when the speed was increased somewhat.

Powell said he was in the boat lowered to search for victims in the water after the fire was extinguished. He kept slowly through the vessel's fognorn and bells, he said.

After a diligent search, which was unsuccessful, Powell said the boat returned to the Fairfax, and he reported to the master.

Q.—Was he satisfied with conditions as you found them? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, Mr. Powell, remember you are under oath. You are credited with having told newspapermen you could issue a statement which would create a sensation. Did you make any such statement? A.—I did not. If I did I must have been out of my head.

Chief Engineer John Oliver, the next witness, said he was in his room when the collision occurred, but did not investigate until the engines were reversed. He told of seeing a fire in the stewardess' room and of ordering men to man a hose. He said he assisted in extinguishing several small fires on deck.

You are old and passed by after 19 years of work.

It is otherwise when you make your reputation with your head. Then, after 19 years, you are, if you amount to anything, just beginning. And you may even have value after 50 years of work.

Henry Ford says that "more than ever" business and industry must depend on older men. When he was young he talked to old men, got their advice and paid attention to it.

He is right about the importance of old men, but when you drive around the works with him, you find on the front seat, in the person of his manager, Mr. Sorenson, a YOUNG man, with the energy of two steam engines.

COLLISION FIRE RELICS DRIFT TO SCITUATE

Cause Intensified Search for More Bodies of Fairfax-Pinthis Victims

A partly burned skiff, two boxes and a flare, which drifted ashore at Scituate today from the illfated tanker Pinthis, spurred coast guardsmen to new efforts in their search for bodies of the remaining 33 victims of the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster.

The relics of the gasoline carrier, which went down with all hands, a flaming tomb, after the collision, rode ashore in front of the Coast-guard station, the flare still burning.

Apparently tossed overboard and ignited at the time of the crash, to have its flickering rays swamped by the light of the conflagration, the flare drifted about until an east wind deposited it on the beach at Scituate.

INTENSIFY SEARCH.

The same wind brought the partly burned skiff, in which was a tub with a short line coiled inside. The boxes, according to coast guardsmen, were used by members of the Pinthis crew to keep their oilskins in when not being worn.

Offshore more debris dotted the waters, and while coast guardsmen patrolled the coastline from Nantasket to the Gurnets, a boat from the Scituate station in command of Boatswain James McIntyre searched the sea.

The success of the fishing schooner Rainbow in picking up 11 bodies yesterday, coupled with an onshore wind, led to the belief that other bodies would come ashore on the eight-mile stretch of beach at Scituate.

NINE IDENTIFIED

Nine of the 11 bodies brought by the schooner Rainbow to this city last night have been identified.

The bodies of two men, both believed to be of the crew of the tanker, are still unclaimed.

On one was found a monogramed watch, the initials indiscernible. On the other was found a coin of the Union St. Railway Co., New Bedford.

The nine identifications brings the known list of victims of the disaster to 35.

Of this number five were Fairfax passengers, 12 members of the Fairfax crew and 18 members of the crew of the Pinthis.

Officials of the New England Oil Co. are making arrangements for raising the Pinthis, which lies in 84 feet of water off Scituate and it is believed some bodies of the crew will be found in her.

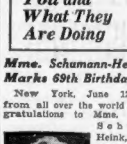
Mme. Schumann-Heink Marks 69th Birthday

New York, June 12—Friends from all over the world sent congratulations to Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, internationally known contralto, on the occasion of her birthday anniversary here yesterday.



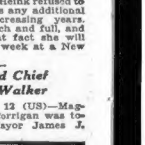
Mme. Schumann-Heink

The famous opera singer was celebrating her 69th year, and had just returned from a tour of the principal cities of the United States, where she had been received with marked acclaim.

Mme. Schumann-Heink refused to admit that she feels any additional burden by the increasing years. Her voice is still rich and full, and to demonstrate that fact she will be the soloist next week at a New York theater.

Corrigan Named Chief Magistrate by Walker

New York, June 12 (US)—Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan was today named by Mayor James J. Walker as chief magistrate of New York to succeed the late William McAdoo.



Magistrate Corrigan

The new chief magistrate immediately took the oath of office and was cheered by Mayor Walker as a "fearless, capable and experienced judge, a fine and courageous character."

The appointment came as a surprise inasmuch as Magistrate Corrigan's independent disposition has repeatedly brought him into conflict with Tammany Hall leaders and the post is considered an important one in that organization.

Coste Awarded Prized Aviator Medal

Paris, June 12—Capt. Dieudonne Coste, French ace, was being felicitated today on his triumph in attaining the medal awarded by the International Aeronautical Federation for the most noteworthy achievements of the year in aviation. Coste's long distance flying records won him the prized decoration, despite the special achievement of Rear-Admiral Richard Byrd, and the Spanish aviators, Ingiesias and Jiminez.

Capt. Coste

Dr. Hugo Eckener, who guided the Graf Zeppelin on her world flights, was considered, together with Admiral Byrd, a possible recipient of the honor. The Austrian flier Kronseld, noted glider expert, was also in the running.

4 Gunmen Hold Up Hotel, Rob Guests

Chicago, June 12 (AP)—The Garfield Arms Hotel, in the hotel district of the West Side, went under the management of four gunmen for nearly an hour early today.

The robbers escaped with $1000 taken from the office safe and from guests after 15 guests and employes had been cowed at pistol point.

The gunmen appeared shortly after midnight, herding half a dozen guests and the night clerk against a wall. One of the quartet stood near the entrance and signaled the approach of each new victim.

REED, GRUNDY VOTES FOR TARIFF ASSURE PASSAGE BY SENATE

NORRIS SAYS MEASURE IS WORST EVER

With the Final Vote a Day Off, He Calls It "Protection Run Perfectly Mad"

Washington, June 12 (AP) Senators Grundy and Reed, Republicans, Pennsylvania, announced today they would vote for the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill.

Reed revealed his support for the bill in a Senate speech and the Grundy announcement was made informally to newspapermen.

The decision of the Pennsylvanians removed doubt as to final passage of the measure.

The Pennsylvanians disclosed their decisions after conferring during the week with President Hoover and Secretary Mellon. Prior to the public word of each, some doubts had been expressed of how they would line up on the final tally, which is set for 2 p. m. tomorrow.

With a final vote a day off, Sen. Norris condemned the tariff bill in the Senate today as representing "Protection Run Perfectly Mad."

Norris contended the bill was "conceived and written in the interest of victorious business organizations who are using their power to bring about the most selfish and indefensible tariff proposition ever considered by the American people."

Norris said those supporting the bill "will see that they have used their own power to bring about their own destruction."

"Already," he added, "big business is seeing signs of depression and destruction that the probability of passage of this bill brings before the entire civilized world."

He denounced the Senate conferees for receding on the amendments restoring the flexible power to Congress and providing for a people's counsel on the tariff commission and suspension of duties where monopolies are found to exist in certain commodities.

Tickets for the South End pool had vacant spaces for the player to insert the three digits he would select in the hope of hitting upon those coming out in the New York clearance and New York balances on the date of the ticket.

While the cost of tickets in the "Grand Special" was 10 cents each as indicated in the name, the players in the South End pool may put up any amount and be rewarded proportionately—if he guesses the correct numbers.

POLICE 'KILLER' SQUADS HUNT LINGLE SLAYER

Chicago, June 12 (AP)—Police "execution squads," each captained by an officer whose courage in fighting gangsters was attested by notches on his revolver, raked Chicago today for the man who killed Alfred ("Jake") Lingle, Tribune reporter.

By last midnight 500 hoodlums, derelicts and suspicious characters were in jail. Lawyers flocked to detective headquarters demanding the release of their clients, but no releases were made.

William Russell, police commissioner, and John Stege, his chief of detectives, were spurred to action by close friendship for Lingle and by a rising flood of hostile public sentiment that gained expression in front page editorials and in statements of civic leaders.

TALK OF MARTIAL LAW

There was talk unofficially among business and civic groups of the possibility of martial law to supercede the police and drive the gangster once and for all from the city.

The Herald and Examiner, which has joined the Tribune and the Evening Post in offering a total reward of $55,000 for arrest and conviction of the man who shot Lingle dead last Monday in the crowded Randolph st. subway, excoriated the police department in a front page editorial. It referred to the department's "miserable inefficiency."

Frank J. Loesch, the aged head of the Chicago crime commission, said that "if Russell and Stege can't find the solution to this crime they should give place to someone who can."

FUNERAL TODAY.

Commissioner Russell himself was one of the pallbearers today at the funeral of Lingle. Services were at Our Lady of Sorrows' Catholic Church.

From other parts of the country came word that gangsters fleeing Chicago were not being welcomed. Six men, presumed to be Chicago gangsters, were arrested in New York yesterday.

ASKS $1000 FOR DENTIST'S KISS

and might reach $1051, the difference being the amount Dr DeWitt seeks to recover in cross suit.

COULDN'T SLEEP, EAT

And then again, it might be nothing at all.

The dentist, whose office is in Boylston st., Harvard sq., and who does the brush and drill work for many Harvard students and members of the faculty, seeks in cross suit to collect $51 from Miss Jordan for ivory work completed but never paid for.

There is no dispute at all regarding the work, Miss Jordan admitting on the witness stand that it was done. But she feels Dr. De Witt shouldn't have sent her any bill at all inasmuch as the kiss she says he stole made her so nervous that she could neither eat nor sleep.

Filing of the suits was kept secret and not until the case was called for hearing today were they revealed.

COULDN'T MOVE

Miss Jordan testified in prosecution of her action that she lives with her parents at 7 Fountain ter. that she is a stenographer and that in September, 1928, she went to Dr De Witt for treatment to her teeth.

"After fixing my tooth he had his arm around my neck and kissed me on the lips, holding me so tightly I couldn't move," she told Judge Arthur P. Stone.

"When he released me, I picked up a glass of water and threw it at him, and he said it was the first time anybody had ever done that."

Cross-examined by Atty. Albert Wunderly, she said they were alone in the office at the time of the alleged osculation.

Move to Cite Cannon in Senate Contempt

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Moves to report Bishop Cannon to the Senate for possible contempt proceedings and to ask for specific authority to investigate political activities were initiated today at the lobby committee session.

A vote was deferred until late this afternoon when a special meeting will be held.

With the 65-year-old churchman on the stand, Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, called upon the committee to cite him to the Senate because of his refusal to answer questions on his 1928 campaign against the Alfred E. Smith presidential candidacy.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, proposed as a substitute that the committee seek direct authorization to go into political work.

The committee had first formally advised Cannon he would not be compelled to answer the questions.

Chairman Caraway said the vote on the first issue was 4 to 1. Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, cast the dissenting vote.

SEEKS MORE POWER

Besides Blaine and Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, other committeemen are Borah, Republican, Idaho; Robinson, Republican, Indiana, and Walsh, Democrat, Montant.

That committee decision had been reached yesterday, after Cannon voluntarily continued testimony on activities of the Southern Methodist Board of Temperance but had asserted his right to decline to answer as to his political activities.

He walked out on the committee last week and returned yesterday without being directed. Senator Walsh, who said his action in leaving the committee room was in contempt of the Senate, said today he had drafted a resolution to extend the committee's power. He presented it for the record but with no indication he would press it.

Senator Blaine contended the committee had power to go into political activities. He cited the examination of Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and said any question relating to lobbying was pertinent.

"Lobbying has been regarded by the committee," he went on, "as activity which involves an attempt to influence legislation by Congress."

BLAINE WANTS FACTS.

Blaine said lobbying involved attempts to obtain appointments to federal offices and the committee had inquired into such activities. The committee also had inquired into attempts to elect senators and representatives, he added, and presidents of the United States.

In the Hinton case, Blaine said, the committee inquired into his financial records.

"My position," said Blaine, "is the committee has authority to go into Bishop Cannon's financial records to ascertain if any of the money has been used in lobbying activities.

"I maintain it is pertinent to ask questions about accounts as the committee may obtain information to require the delivery of those accounts."

The accounts to which Blaine referred dealt with $63,300 contributed to Cannon by E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, for use in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign.

Blaine moved to cite Cannon to the Senate for contempt.

Before he could press his motion Caraway referring to assertions he said had been made to the effect that the committee had dealt differently with witnesses, Caraway read from the examination of Henry H. Curran, president of the Association against the Prohibition Amendment.

He said the association had been engaged in lobbying activities.

"I know honest men of deep religious and prohibition prejudices sometimes cease to tell the truth," the Arkansan observed.

CITES G. O. P. LOBBYING

He said the committee's action in inquiring into Huston's accounts was prompted by information that some of the money had been used in "lobbying activities" for the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

"Everybody knows it was a lobbying account," Caraway said.

Referring to $36,100 given to Huston by the Union Carbide Company, Caraway said:

"That was a lobbying fund. There never was any question about it."

The money was given for use of the Tennessee association in advocating leasing of Muscle Shoals to the American Cyanamid Company.

"Wherever there has been lobbying in connection with political activities, there is no question about the authority of the committee," Caraway said.

He declared the committee heretofore had conducted its affairs largely by a unanimous consent, but "from now on the decisions will be announced as a majority."

He said if a majority voted against Blaine's resolution, it would not prevent Blaine from carrying it to the Senate.

WIFE PROUD OF HERO HUSBAND

"I feel the loss of my husband terribly, but I'm proud to know that he died trying to save the lives of helpless women," said Mrs. J. W. Walker today, fighting hard to keep back the tears that rushed to her eyes.

"I wouldn't have had him do anything else. He has always been very brave and thought first of others."

Joshua W. Walker, pharmacist's mate on the Fairfax, died Tuesday night in a vain attempt to save the life of a woman passenger on his ship. He had already rescued several others, but in attempting to pull her back over the rail to safety, lost his footing and plunged with her into the raging sea. His body has not been identified among those recovered.

Mrs. Walker visited the morgue on North Grove st. this afternoon in the forlorn hope that she would recognize her husband's body there. With her were two friends from Maine who had driven her to Boston today. Mrs. Philip Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Hutchins of Eliot, Me.

"When she left the morgue Mrs. Walker said, "I have not found my husband's body, but I will never give up the search until I go. We have been married less than a year and this was only his second trip in the service."

The sad young wife is little older than a girl. On her face there is no sign of flinching, nor does she allow herself the comfort of tears as others might do.

Naval Officers Fail to Identify Fairfax Victim

Four naval officers from the Boston navy yard went to the Northern Mortuary today in an attempt to identify Pharmacist Mate J. B. Walker, who went to his death trying to save the life of a woman in the Fairfax disaster. Comdr. Hugh Brahnam told reporters the bodies were so burned and mutilated they were beyond identification. Others in the group were Lieut. George H. Brahm, Dr. B. U. Hogan and Dr. M. A. Bliss.

Tarr May Act in Big Sea Crash Disaster

Characterizing the Fairfax-Pinthis collision and loss of life as "a horrible disaster," U. S. Dist. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr today declared he will take such action as may be warranted.

He will, however, await completion of the present investigation by the steamboat inspectors and the receipt of their conclusions.

His statement, given out at his office in the Federal Building, Young's Hotel, follows:

"This horrible disaster, the collision between the Fairfax and the Pinthis, causing the loss of many lives, is, of course, receiving the careful attention of this office.

MUST HAVE PROOF

"It would be premature and entirely improper for me to express any opinion as to criminal responsibility on the part of the officers of the Fairfax. This office will take no action until the investigation by the steamboat inspectors has been completed and a statement of their conclusions is available for examination.

"The statutes of the United States hold responsible criminally any master in charge of a ship who is guilty of negligence in navigating his vessel which results in injury, but this negligence, this conduct, or inattention to duty which results in injury must be a plain failure to take such care or exercise such precautions as the situation plainly calls for.

"It is not sufficient that upon a closely balanced judgment in looking back on the event he now appears to be negligent. If a person's negligence is a closely debatable matter it is not negligence beyond a reasonable doubt.

"Whether or not it is negligence for the master of a vessel to proceed through a dense fog, using such precautions and such signals as the laws require, is an open question. Unfortunately vessels do proceed through fog. It is a universal practice.

NOT "SAFETY FIRST"

"And serious damage and loss of life often result from the practice. We are all living at high speed and are impatient of delays. Apparently the motto 'Safety First' is not highly regarded on the high seas. It is a question, apparently, whether schedules are more important than safety.

"But the captain of the Fairfax in proceeding through the fog was following what I think is the practice of almost all masters.

"The statutes of the United States further provide that in every case of collision between two vessels it shall be the duty of the master, if and so far as he can do so without serious danger to his own vessel, crew, and passengers, to stay by the other vessel and to render the other vessel, her master, crew and passengers, such assistance as may be practicable and as may be necessary in order to save them so far as possible from danger caused by collision.

SOS NOT REQUIRED

"There is, I think, no ruling by the court that this statute requires assistance shall be summoned by radio message. I understand that it is claimed and is also denied that the Fairfax failed to send out any radio message summoning help.

"It is a question whether or not the failure to summon help by radio, if no such message was sent and could have been sent, is such a failure to give assistance as would bring the case within the terms of the statute.

"If after the fullest investigation and examination of the available evidence, and with full justice and fair dealing to all concerned, it appears that there has been any violation of statutory duty, the matter will be submitted to the grand jury. If, on the other hand, there is no adequate evidence of criminal evidence or failure to give necessary assistance, no such action will be taken."

Fairfax Officers Tell of Sea Horror

CHIEF ENGINEER JOHN OLIVER of the Fairfax, another witness at the sea disaster hearing, testified that he was in his room at the time of the collision that sent the tanker Pinthis to the bottom of Massachusetts Bay. He gave little of interest to investigators. (Staff photos.)

C. J. POWELL, third officer of the coastal liner Fairfax, on watch at the time of the collision, was one of the witnesses at the hearing today. He told of being in a boat lowered to search for victims.

Saved With Wife

CHAS. F. SMITH, BANKER, DIES

Charles F. Smith, 52, assistant treasurer of C. D. Parker Co., bankers, 150 Congress st., dropped dead of a heart attack today on Congress st. Mr. Smith's address was given as Hillside ave., Winchester. The body was removed to the Haymarket Relief Station.

Texas Refinery Fire Fatal to Workman

Port Arthur, Tex., June 12—Firemen were guarding today against further outbursts of a blaze in the Texas Refinery Company plant which took the life of a workman, injured 11 others, and caused property damage estimated by company officials at nearly $1,000,000.

The blaze was brought under control last night four hours after it was started by an unexplained explosion which shot a geyser of burning oil over nearby structures.

Arlington Man Dies on Street

To Citizens of Metropolitan Boston:—

This year will be celebrated the three hundredth anniversary of Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The descendants of those early colonists number several million persons distributed over the entire country. Boston will be visited by hundreds of thousands of them this summer and autumn, and because of this Tercentenary Anniversary most of the national Conventions of the country, including that of the American Legion, will be held this year in Boston.

In the past such important anniversaries have been observed by great Fairs or Exhibitions, such as the Centennial in 1876 at Philadelphia and the World's Fair or Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1892-3, and there was the Pageant in Plymouth, Massachusetts ten years ago to mark its Tercentenary.

But Boston has decided not to have a World's Fair. The Mayor of Boston has called upon its citizens to observe this great anniversary by welcoming and entertaining the armies of visitors. A representative committee has the matter in charge, and the programme includes a great variety of public diversions to last throughout the summer. The sum of $300,000 is asked for, to be raised by popular contribution in addition to sums already appropriated by the State and the City. This modest amount may be contrasted with the ten or fifteen millions now being raised in Chicago for the observance of its one hundredth anniversary two years hence.

A Citizens' Committee has been formed, consisting of the undersigned, to constitute a responsible body to receive contributions to the Popular Tercentenary Fund.

Please remit to George S. Mumford, Treasurer, care of The Atlantic National Bank, Boston, Mass.

NEW AIRPLANE GETS LOT OF ATTENTION

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

"That's the berries; but we've got to make new rules for it," said Airport Supt. Albert L. Edson, after flying the Aeronca monoplane, which was brought to Boston by Reggie Schueler of Providence Air Transport, Inc.

The plane, a single seated power glider, caused more furore on the Boston Airport than anything since Lindbergh landed here. Putting along on its 30-horsepower motor, Schueler startled the otherwise quiet port with his appearance out of a fog bank.

CIRCLES FIELD

After circling the field a couple of times to bring out the gang, Schueler throttled the motor and glided around, shouting, "How's the weather down there?"

When the plane landed, it was seen that its wheels were attached directly to the fuselage. The entire group of airport officials broke into a hearty laugh. "To think that that thing will fly" was the unanimous declaration.

Smiling, Schueler climbed out and invited Edson to try it. "Ed-die" climbed into the miniature cockpit, and went flying. He stated that for ease and simplicity of control, the ship was nearly foolproof.

LANDS ANYWHERE

Harry Depew Copland, manager of the Boston station of Curtiss-Wright, tried the little job, and after flying around for a few minutes, landed and said:

"I've got to get one of these to use between my home and the airport. You can land it anywhere. I haven't had so much fun in the 19 years I've been flying."

About 25 pilots took turns at the controls.

Technically, the ship is a high wing monoplane, with a 36-foot wing spread. It is primarily a glider with a 30-horsepower, two-cylinder horizontally opposed engine stuck in its nose. The fuselage is completely covered and the cockpit is under the wing, with the sides open.

Gasoline capacity of the tank is 3 gallons, permitting almost four hours of flight at cruising speed of 65 miles an hour. Wide open it will do 85 miles, and in any kind of a light breeze the craft will land at between 15 and 20 miles per hour.

"It's getting to the point where the average man can afford to fly," said Tom Croce, veteran barnstormer. "Fifteen hundred dollars and it's yours," said Schueler.

Threat to Burn Her, Wins Wife Divorce

Her husband threatened to pour gasoline on her clothes and burn her to death when she objected to the visits at their home of the "other woman," Mrs. Florence A. Doherty of Boston ave., Somerville, testified yesterday in her contested separate support suit against Clarence A. Doherty, a coppersmith, in East Cambridge Probate Court.

She also declared that he carried a carving knife in his pocket and that she found love letters sent to him by the other woman, whom she did not name. She admitted that the threat to kill her was made when she refused to make any home brew because he drank it too fast.

Contempt Action Looms After Sale

Contempt action by Asst. Corp. Counsel Leo Schwartz, prosecuting police padlock proceedings against liquor nuisances in probate court loomed today after a sale of liquor was made in the building on Northampton st., South End. Judge Elias B. Bishop issued a temporary injunction against the place several days ago.

Richard Simonds, 22, giving his address as Northampton st., was arrested charged with making the sale and with keeping and exposing liquor for sale. He was arraigned in court and held in $500 bail. Simonds was not among those named in the injunction.

Letters are already pouring in from all over New England, not only sending in solutions in his quotations, but also thanking him for an enjoyable and profitable month of entertainment.

For each of the 29 historical sketches was prepared with the utmost thoroughness and attention to detail, in order that they should be absolutely accurate.

Consequently, listeners-in, especially those of school age, were given many interesting sidelights on the human side of our country's early heroes.

To those who have been solving the picture clues and who plan to try for one of the awards, the former Mystery Messenger has only one bit of advice.

Charm of Dainty, Womanly Style of Long Ago Praised by Writers

Letters Tell Marion Davies Girls Had More Respect Then; One Hub View

Hollywood, June 12—Now that woman has gained her freedom—she finds that she no longer wants it! At least that is the opinion of numbers of entrants in the Marion Davies style contest.

In gaining her liberty—by means of shortened skirts and hair, by dint of discarding the restrictions of an older day—she has lost her modesty, her allure and her right to expect chivalry, they say.

And they aver that she regrets her loss. They see in the new trend of fashion a desire on the part of women to revert to the clinging tactics of their grandmothers and to renounce the "equality" for which the sex has struggled.

Trailing frills and furbelows—such as Marion Davies wears in her newest picture, "The Florodora Girl," now playing at the New Pantages Theater—will restore woman's femininity, these writers imagine, and bring back the gentler manners of the 90's.

"I speak not as a prude, but as an observer," writes Marie De Abad, 1441 Ellis st., San Francisco. "The new-found freedom of woman has cheapened her in the eyes of the passing generation to which I belong. Independence is all right—but it becomes license when carried too far—and that is not a pretty word.

"In the new mode we find much of the healthly comfortable but, alas! much of the vulgar, too.

"Leave the past to itself. Tone down the new mode.

Miss Anne M. Maloney, 2200 Forest ave., Staten Island, N. Y., remarks:

"Having got exactly what they set out to get when they decided to be men's equals, women have found that they really do not want it after all. They thought that they must look masculine, act masculine and even dress so, if they would attain their objective—equality.

"At last every woman looked just like every other woman, so far as costume—or lack of it—was concerned. This was a great drawback and women have begun to realize it. They have lost their individuality. Mystery and allure have vanished. They paid too high a price to pay for freedom.

"I think we shall see the return of the picturesque, the feminine—but these adapted to modern needs."

Not all of the contestants agree with these views—as you will see in the excerpts from other letters which follow:

In my opinion the modern girl looks best in modern styles to suit the individual type, made in moderation, to bring out her special points of beauty. The girls of today can look and be just as sweet and attractive as in the gay nineties if they will only be content to be so and not try for sensationalism.

Blanche Pratt,
Normandie Apartments,
Seattle, Wash.

Those masculine designers who make the styles and those men who advocate women going back to them, let them wear them and see how they like it!

Mrs. Lucile Goodrich,
1117North Dearborn,
Chicago, Ill.

Why cover up legs and arms now when they have been showing for 10 years? We are all through using our imagination. We are using our eyes, and you don't hear of any more people going blind than you did 80 years ago.

Dorothy Wiskowski,
733 Eighth ave.,
West Allis, Wis.

All styles seem laughable after they have gone out. In 20 years from now people probably will have hysterics when shown a picture of the present day.

Margaret M. Dilworth,
14760 Metteral ave.,
Detroit, Mich.

The skimpy "glad rags" of Miss Today are eye-holding and sensational. I doubt that the attire of the Florodora-Sextette had these splendid virtues. Surely the fashion pages of that past period did not display them!

The style calendar has been kind to the modern lass and king to us males that find her so very fascinating.

Thomas R. Akers,
Baltimore, Md.

If the styles of the '90s had not changed we would be wearing them today.

Ethel Mills,
377 Silver st.,
South Boston, Mass.

LAURA BELL SHAVE,
Yulee, Fla.

The women of today and tomorrow are learning the ways of being well dressed and regardless of the changing fashion will wear the styles best suited to the time and place and to their figures and age

Can You Write on Style?

Do you remember the famous Florodora Sextette?

Are you familiar with the styles of the gay nineties?

Do you prefer those styles to the fashions for women today?

Do you think those styles are coming back?

Put your ideas in a letter and send it to Miss Marion Davies at the New Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

$1000 in prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a woman.

$500 will be paid for the best letter from a man.

The contest closes at midnight, Saturday, June 14.

5 Slayers Doomed to Die in Chair on Friday, 13th

Eddyville, Ky., June 12 (AP)—The early morning hours of Friday the thirteenth today loomed closer for a white man and four negroes sentenced to be electrocuted here, as the fate of at least three of them hung in the balance.

While Warden L. R. Gumm went about his grim duties of preparing the death seat for what he describes as "the solemn procedure," Gov. Sampson was considering pleas for last minute stays for three of the negroes.

Little hope is held for two of them, convicted of the barnyard slaying of W. A. Muse, 64, who was struck and robbed as he knelt to place flowers on his wife's grave in Louisville. The others also are slayers.

When the flames were discovered Lindley and his wife dived from the plane, which was taking off, and swam ashore. The priests and others were disembarked and taken ashore in boats.

The machine was an Italian plane. It was leaving for the Piraeus when it took fire from a spark in the carburetor. It sank soon after the blaze broke out.

HELENE QUEEN ALREADY, SAYS KING CAROL

Bucharest, Roumania, June 12 (AP)—King Carol today was reported to have declared the Princess Helene, his former wife, to be already Queen of Rumania."

The king told his brother Nicholas, and his sister, Princess Elizabeth, that when his father, King Ferdinand, died he, Carol, automatically became king and Helene became queen.

Since then the divorce was pronounced. But with the parliamentary annulment on Sunday of all intervening events since King Ferdinand's death and his own reinstallation as king, Helene automatically became queen.

SENDS WORD TO HELENE.

King Carol begged Nicholas to give this message to Helene, which he did when the mother of Crown Prince Michael came to bring their child this forenoon to play.

Helene was reported as having declared herself satisfied.

The Papal Nuncio, dean of the diplomatic body in Bucharest, today personally congratulated King Carol and brought the Pope's blessing.

MARIE NEARING HOME

Queen Marie, homeward bound to see Carol, who made his dramatic stroke for the throne while she was en route to see the Passion Play at Oberammergau, passed the Rumanian frontier today and is expected here late tonight.

Not all of Carol's time is occupied with family matters. Juliu Maniu, former premier, told him he would be unable to form a Cabinet, and Carol asked Gen. Prezan, not connected with any party, to see if he could succeed. M. Maniu promised to support Gen. Prezan, a hero of the World War.

Mme. Lambrino Passes Up Any Claim on Carol

Paris, June 12 (AP)—Mme. Zizi Lambrino, who was the morganatic wife of King Carol of Rumania before he married Princess Helene of Greece, told Excelsior today she had no intention of attempting to establish any legal claim on Carol, nor of starting for Bucharest.

"I have not the slightest intention of trying to establish any rights either for myself or for my son," she said. "My marriage was, I don't cease to repeat, perfectly legal and I have a legal certificate of marriage. I had not at any time any ambition. Being Rumanian I knew perfectly well that I could not be a Queen, but in it equitable to prevent my son from having a father?

"It is untrue that I am leaving for Bucharest next July, as every year I go to Moldavia where I have property and remain there during my son's school vacation. But the trip has no connection with present events."

Zizi is not in any way bitter toward Carol.

"I still have affection, perhaps too much, for him," she said, with a far away look in her eyes.

At Recital

RICH ENGINEER A VICTIM OF POISON

Fair Haven, N. J., June 12 (AP)—Poison, apparently taken by accident, today was declared officially to have caused the death of Donald Shields Andrews, wealthy chemical engineer, who in 1915, when a student at Yale, eloped with a princess.

His partner in the sensational elopement, Mrs. Alma V. Hayne, also known as the Princess Vestra of Austria, took her life by drinking poison at the second Victory ball in London in 1919.

Andrews was was found dead in the $200,000 laboratory he built and in which he endeavored to make precious stones synthetically.

Chief of Police Herdon said a drinking glass partly filled with water was on the floor beside the body. A container of poison was on the table.

Andrews was the son of Matthew Andrews of Cleveland, a business associate of Marcus A. Hanna.

Mrs. Hayne claimed to be the natural daughter of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria and the Baroness Marie Vetsera, who were found dead together in a hunting lodge in 1889.

Overtakes Battleship With Speed Boat

New Haven, Ct., June 12—The New Haven Register tells of a dramatic race made by F. A. Steckel, a member of the Yale Naval Training unit, to overtake the battleship after it had sailed from New London. Steckel arrived after the battleship had started its cruise with the Yale unit. He engaged a speed boat, which overtook the Mississippi.

Holdup Leads to Raid on Speakeasy

New York, June 12 (AP)—Four men held up a speakeasy in West 44th st. early today and escaped after obtaining several hundred dollars from a dozen patrons and $300 from the cash register.

Investigating the holdup, police seized eight half-barrels of beer and several cases of alleged liquor and arrested the bartender on charges of violating the prohibition law.

Pencil Only Clue to Slayer of Youth

New York, June 12 (AP)—A yellow lead pencil was the sole clue in the possession of the police today in the slaying of Joseph Fabrizzia, 25 years old, who was shot five times by two men who crept up behind him on Houston st.

Fabrizzia attempted to pursue his assailants, but collapsed and died a few hours later. The lead pencil was found in the street where Fabrizzia was shot down.

Pilot Lands Plane Among Golfers

Wakefield, June 12—After sweeping low over the Bear Hill golf links, where a number of people were playing, to warn away the crowd, Peter R. L. Brooks, piloting an airplane from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, N. Y., manoeuvred his machine to a safe descent onto the green yesterday. With Brooks as a passenger was Eric Woods.

The plane started its journey several hours earlier, heading north, and the pilot lost his way in the dense fog. When he got over Wakefield and sighted a big field below, he decided to make a landing, and did so, after space had been cleared.

NEWS OF THE PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

Does any shipping man in New England know where to locate a tramp steamer of 2700 gross tons, loaded for London?

Attelegram arrived at the Boston office of one of the biggest motion picture concerns in Hollywood, instructing the Hub representative to ask for the co-operation of the Boston American in locating a steamer of this size.

The exact description of the vessel as worded in the telegram is:

"Tramp vessel going up Thames river to London. Should be of 2700 gross tons and 1612 net tons, although variation of a few hundred tons will be allowed. Should be of the three island type, with derricks in between."

The message then explained that the photoplay concern wished to place a camera man on board to take authentic scenes of tramp steamer life, with special reference to sailing from Boston and entering the Thames.

Anyone possessing knowledge of the present or expected location of such a steamer, is requested to write or telegraph this newspaper, securing this vessel for the concern, which is one of the three greatest in the world, will mean some international film publicity for Boston.

Diary of Modern Mariner

Today's entry in the diary of our "Modern Mariner," reads:

"Heard that Michael Borgan is conducting a campaign against smoking on the docks, and is trying to sell the idea to 'Honk' Lynch. Learned that Eddie Finnegan has a new car. He is rated as the Beau Brummell of the Lockenbach staff. Lately he has gone into the restaurant business as a side venture."

Miscellaneous

Capt. George Adams of Attleboro and Providence yesterday observed his 63rd birthday, although he easily passes for 43 years. He has followed the sea for more than 50 years, of which 40 were as a licensed officer. He was a Providence harbor pilot and also a Navy officer during the war.

The Hydrographic office at the customs house has been advised that the international ice patrol has been discontinued. The Modac is near Halifax, and the Mojave, known as the "Queen of the seas," is steaming toward Boston. The icebergs came down earlier than usual this year, and are out of the way sooner than usual.

The United Fruiter Manchioneal has arrived in Boston with bananas from Jamaica. This "old standby" of the New York and Philadelphia runs is making her first Boston appearance in three years.

C. D. Hubbard, New England sales agent of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp., has been elected chairman of the board of governors of the Propeller Club of Boston. He was its president in 1927-1928, and is one of the best known men in marine circles.

The United Fruit baseball team recently boosted its percentage to four wins and one defeat by trimming the National Shawmut team 18 to 1. Charles Dixon is manager and Joe McNamara is captain.

Today's Who's Who

Hachrach Photo

Capt. Haskell

"Ted" is a safety man for the Mystic docks and under his campaign of education and analysis of accidents, the number of injuries has decreased markedly. His system is to keep the five foremen well posted on safety matters, and they in turn talk to the 450 men in their charge.

Haskell is a graduate of the University of Maine and a loyal supporter of Rocky Vallee of Maine fame. The traffic man was a captain in the World War and married a charming Southern girl. Their young son is known as "The General."

This port booster and Foreign Commerce Club member, has one great ambition.

"I want to own a $30 Franklin," he confessed.

Club Election

The 250 members of the Union Club of the United Fruit organization have just elected their new officers after a spirited contest. R. A. Fisher, chief clerk in the auditing department, and known as "Bird Fisher," was chosen president while still in the tropics on a trip.

Walter G. Timmock, port purser of the Boston division, was made vice-president. He is a graduate of Boston College and recently of Suffolk Law School. John Mehan of the statistical bureau was elected treasurer. Miss Eleanor Miller of the general office was chosen secretary.

Today's Safety Rule

Rule No. 35 of the marine safety code reads:

Winchmen shall inspect their winches to make sure that no lever pins are working loose or coming out, or that nothing about their levers might cause them to lose control of the power or the load, and that falls are securely fastened to the drum.

TRAP WOMAN AS DOPE PEDLAR

Newport, June 12—A woman "undercover" agent of the federal narcotic service in Boston brought about the arrest of another woman and a man on drug peddling charges here, it was disclosed today.

Mrs. Vincenzia Rose, 43, and Basford Caldas, 27, were arrested by agents after they allegedly sold drugs to the woman operator. The "undercover" agent worked for nearly three weeks to obtain evidence after complaint had been made to Dr. Herman H. Wouters, in charge of the New England narcotic division, that Mrs. Rose was selling drugs to regular addicts.

Dr. Wouters denied a Providence newspaper story that the arrests were only two anticipated in a local ring selling to naval men. He feared that no ring existed, that no complaint ever was made of sale to sailors and that with the arrest of the man and woman his agents had accomplished all that they set out to do. Newport, he said, was singularly free of drug traffic.

Railway Signal Man Killed at Gardner

Gardner, June 12—Fred H. Lindblad, 22, of St. Paul, Minn., a railway signal company employe, was killed today near the South Ashburnham station of the Boston & Maine Railroad when the boom of a work car derrick fell on him.

Letters From American Readers

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

They call mosquitoes in Africa "devils," and everyone is out killing them.

This was what the son of a Zulu chief in Africa has been doing since he returned to his home after obtaining an education in America. He spent part of his time in Boston disguised, where he picked up a good many serviceable ideas.

His people thought that sickness and death was caused by devils. "Boil your drinking water and you kill your devils," he told them.

He then described germs in drinking water as "devils." His people got on to the idea after a time. They are now killing insects, mosquitoes, boiling water before drinking it, and "devils" in that country are being hunted and running for their lives. There is nothing like American education in bringing out the truth and killing pests.

Thinks Street Conditions Liable for Accidents

Editor Boston American:

I note in today's issue, 7 p. m., the headline, two dying in Salem auto smash, two others dead.

Isn't there a chance to spur to action the railway company. This company's rails have been torn up from above North st. in Salem well up toward the Lynn line during the past several weeks.

I think you will find that this accident is directly due to slowing up traffic on account of the street having been torn up relaying the rails.

Essex st. in Salem is a one-way street from Liberty st. to North st. and at times (practically all the time in fact) the traffic congestion is bad.

I noticed while standing at a street corner the other evening, an auto with two young men in it going into a cross street off Highland ave., which is the continuation of Essex st., going toward Lynn came very near being struck by a car going toward Salem.

The car going toward Salem was driven (had to be driven in fact to avoid a collision) over into the place where the street railway rails had been taken up.

If there were no street cars on Essex st., traffic conditions would be very much relieved. There would be no need of having it a one-way street.

Finds Speed Invades Realm of Thought

Editor Boston American:

There is so much speeding in the world that now it has invaded the sacred precincts of the human mind.

Now we are to have fast thinking. In a few years from now high powered executives, among them President of the United States, will be ushered into thought chambers.

There they will have their brains heated for fast thinking.

Mind you, fast thinking! Note this! They will think clearer, too. It will put the kibosh on abstruse and prolonged legal arguments. It will decide the knotty problems of the world in no time at all. So declares radio prophet, O. H. Caldwell, who spun this prophesy before the meeting of the American Electrochemical Society.

Have your brains heated by radio currents? This comes from high frequency vacuum tubes. This will stimulate nervous reactions and thought processes, bringing about mental speed and efficiency. Go into thought chambers 20 or less years from now. Don't footle on a public flute, just retire to these thought sanctums. Oh! boy, what a future we'll have.

Thinks Word "Liberty" Is Overworked

Editor Boston American:

If there is any word unduly overworked in addresses before Boston audiences during the past three weeks, it is that word "Liberty."

I heard it so many times rung that I am driven to let loose my feelings in your letter column. We expect to hear more of this during the historic events, related to the observance of the Tercentenary.

Shades of Patrick Henry! Your words are heard everywhere: "Give me liberty." But the modern voice exclaims: "Give me a drink." It means absence of restraint.

The Puritans worked it to worship the Almighty according to their consciences. It is worked now in the interests of birth control. It is polished up for a cocktail to appear sooner. It pounds the dust out of the cushions of many a pulpit. It is marked in short skirts, women smoking, trial marriages and synthetic love freaks. We are all "batty" on liberty. Right here in Boston, the cradle of liberty, too!

Finds People in Hub Believe in Evil Eye

Editor Boston American:

Strange as it may appear, there are people of foreign birth who believe in the prevalence of the evil eye in human beings. They are here in Boston. This is one of the oldest superstitions in history.

While engaged in social service in this city, I came across a family who had moved from very good apartments to one inferior in condition, because the person living over them possessed an evil eye, and this meant to them the coming of a lot of misfortune.

Then I saw little children running around tenements wearing a blue bead, which is regarded as a sort of protection from this evil eye. The children wearing these beads are named: Euphrosyne, Artemis, Andromache, Aphrodite, Daphne, Achilles, Pericles and Themistocles.

It is quite an interesting feature of Boston life, to find children of today named after heroes and heroines of the past.

Wants Liberator From Some 1930 Laws

Editor Boston American:

One of the nastiest terms in the English language is "minimum wage," and sitting with it in munty conference are "prohibition" and "unemployment."

Within five years prohibition will have turned America into an unpatriotic nation with selfishness, greed and meanness dominant.

Within five years unemployment will have become such a source of danger that fear will be everywhere and the nation will begin to think of the decay of the Roman Empire.

A walk into any store will show many things that one would like. One mustn't think of them. They are beyond his reach. He must do with the bare necessaries. Nothing for trips, vacations, clubs. The poorest clothes from the cheapest shops and a hopeless future ahead to be freed only by death.

In 1863 Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves. Who will do as much for the slaves of 1930?

Says So. Boston Needs More Libraries

Editor Boston American:

One of the big insurance companies of America spends millions of dollars to promote the health of their policy holders by giving daily exercises every morning over the radio.

Very few of the population of South Boston are able to take advantage of these exercises and a great number in South Boston are not possessed of the facilities to listen in.

South Boston with ninety thousand population, is the only large section in Boston without a public gymnasium. If exercise is good, why deprive the young men and women of South Boston of this health giving unit?

There are only three branch libraries in South Boston from Edward Everett sq. to City Point. This also is a handicap to South Boston.

Dying Boy's Gift Brings Results

Editor Boston American:

Information has reached Boston from Dr. John B. Clark of Tryon, N. C., that the mountain children in outlying districts have had no lunches for some time on account of the hard industrial conditions prevailing down there.

Dr. Clark, who is a Congregational minister, told a young boy in his parish of these children in the mountain sections who were deprived of their lunches. The boy has been very ill for some time. Hearing this news, he told Dr. Clark to take $5 hidden between the leaves of the Bible and use the money in feeding the hungry mountain children. Later the boy died.

On Sunday morning, the five-dollar bill was displayed from the pulpit of Dr. Clark's church. The story was told of the boy's gift. It was then and there increased to $50 by the congregation present. This is such a touching story told me in Boston that I thought your readers would like to hear what a sick boy did with hard earned money.

Atrocities as Reds Seize Chinese Town

Shanghai, China, June 12 (AP)—A strong force of Communists is reported to have seized the town of Tayeh in the Province of Hupeh. Numerous atrocities were reported. An official denial was issued during the day of a report that Chiang Kai-Shek was contemplating retirement. It was stated that he was going by airplane to Hankow to direct operations against the Northern troops.

SEES PLOT TO UPSET U. S.

Washington, June 12—The assertion that communistic organizations had been formed in the United States to overthrow the Government was made today before the House committee investigating communistic activities by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

At the same time Green placed his organization on record as "uncompromisingly opposed to communism and to the communistic philosophy."

The Communists have felt, Green said, that to bring about world revolution and the destruction of the American Government they would have to overthrow and control the Federation of Labor. He added there never would be a compromise with the Communists.

Wall Street So Stingy He Keeps Bonds He Finds; Is Held

New York, June 12 (AP)—Joseph Locurto is the unluckiest fellow—he's always finding bonds.

Two years ago he found a couple in New st., and today a court held him why he'd kept them instead of trying to find the owner.

"I've had my experience in Wall st.," he answered. "They're not as liberal down there as they want people to think. In 1927 I found $40,000 worth of bonds, and when I returned them to the bank that owned them all I got was a letter of thanks."

Today he pleaded guilty to attempted grand larceny.

Dean Is Honored

Norton, June 12—Dean Miriam F. Carpenter of Wheaton College today received an honorary degree of L. H. D., doctor of humane letters, from Colorado College.

PRISON TUNNEL PLOT FOILED

Joliet, Ill., June 12 (AP)—A jail delivery plot has been frustrated with the discovery of a tunnel dug under the State Prison wall and five convicts were in solitary confinement today at the old penitentiary here. The five prisoners were captured one by one as they kept their appointments yesterday to dig under the chair shop. They had tunneled within three feet of freedom.

William Evans, 38, who was captured in 1927 when he entered the prison in the guise of a priest with a satchel full of nitroglycerine to blast an avenue to freedom for a pal, is regarded as the brains of the plot.

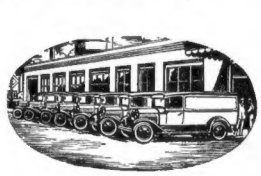
SERVING MANY BUSINESSES

Experience of large fleet owners reveals the unusual reliability and economy of the new Ford



A SIGNIFICANT TRIBUTE to the value of the new Ford is found in its increasing use by Federal, state and city governments and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most instances, the Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests of every factor that contributes to good performance—speed, power, safety, comfort, low cost of operation and up-keep, reliability and long life.

Prominent among the companies using the Ford are the Associated Companies of the Bell System, Armour and Company, The Borden Company, Continental Baking Corporation, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, General Electric Company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Kellogg Company, Knickerbocker Ice Company, Morton Salt Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, The Procter & Gamble Company, and Swift & Company.

Each of these companies uses a large number of Ford cars and trucks. The Associated Companies of the Bell System use more than eight thousand.

Modern business moves at a fast pace and it needs the Ford. Daily, in countless ways and places, it helps to speed the production and delivery of the world's goods and extend the useful service of men and companies.

Constant, steady operation over many thousands of miles emphasizes the advantages of the sound design of the Ford car, its high quality of materials, and accuracy in manufacturing. Beneath its graceful lines and beautiful colors there is a high degree of mechanical excellence.

An example of the value built into the Ford is the use of more than twenty ball and roller bearings. They are hidden within the car and you may never see them. Yet they play an important part in satisfactory, economical performance. Their function is similar to the jewels of a fine watch.

Throughout the Ford chassis, a ball or roller bearing is used at every place where it is needed to reduce friction and wear and give smooth, reliable mechanical operation.

At many points, as on the transmission counter-shaft, clutch release, fan and pump shaft, and front drive shaft, these ball and roller bearings are used where less costly types of bearings might be considered adequate.

Additional instances of the high quality built into the Ford are the extensive use of steel forgings, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Rustless Steel, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, and the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

The Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part and then, through large production, give it to the public at low cost.

The Rainbow's End is within Your reach

DID you ever feel so desperate you wanted to jump out of a window? That's the wrong end of the rainbow.

Ill health is a burden on body, mind and friends. But Nature never fails to signal her dangers. Lack of appetite, flabby flesh, loss of strength and skin troubles is a warning from Nature. This is her way of pleading for help.

The basic requirement for good health is rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

A CLEAR SKIN COMES FROM WITHIN

When S.S.S. is indicated in your case you owe it to yourself and friends to try it.

If you desire firm flesh, a glowing complexion, energy, vitality and the blessings of health you must keep your blood in good condition.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the large size. It is more economical.

The wedding ceremony was performed at the Church of the Advent, Brimmer st., Boston, and a reception followed at the Algonquin Club. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Edward Hollis of Bay State rd. and looked very beautiful in her bridal satin with long circular train and pearl headdress from which her tulle veil enveloped her. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias, which was fashioned in sections with tiny prize in each bouquet, ring, thimble, etc., so that when she threw it a fortune would be suggested to the recipient.

THE ATTENDANTS WERE in blue chiffon with capes and flounces of frosty blue lace with large hats matching, banded by lavender velvet. Their slippers also were of lavender and they carried orchid irises and talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Florence Watts, Mary Sage, Florence Ward, Catherine Brown, Margaret Cluett, Lois Smith, Elizabeth Fitzpatrick and Constance Creighton. The church was decorated with white peonies, cibotium ferns and palms.

THE BRIDE WAS GRADUATED from Westover School in 1929 and belongs to the Longwood Cricket Club and the Scituate Yacht Club. Mr. Hill is of the class of 1931 at Harvard and is a member of the Hasty Pudding and Iroquois Clubs.

It may be in the nature of a farewell to some of the handsome Harvard boys who will depart for far away places after the festivities of class-day week. The scene will be the Putnam Barn at Putnamville, Danvers, and the invitations have been few but choice.

The ceremony was attended by intimate friends and relatives only. The bride was given in marriage by Mrs. Locke, widow of the novelist. The bridal couple will spend their honeymoon on the Continent and eventually Mr. Currier will bring his bride to Boston.

Clubs Plan Music Program For Mental Institutions

By NANCY BREWSTER

That a music program for the mental and correctional institutions can be most efficiently promoted by the women's clubs of America is the belief of Mrs. Harold Vincent Milligan, chairman of the department of American music in the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

At the fall resumption of club activities Bay State clubwomen will be asked to subscribe to a program along these lines: Appointment of committees to study the musical needs of the local mental and correctional institutions in co-operation with the state, county or city authorities.

PRESSING PROBLEM

Mrs. Milligan holds one of society's pressing problems. She says:

"Far reaching steps toward a solution of this problem will have been taken when the men, women and children cared for in these institutions are treated and educated in such ways that their inherent urge toward an appreciation and expression of the true, the good and beautiful as related to practical, personal and social life will be made a conscious, strong and dominant factor in the shaping of their destinies."

She adds that a music program for institutions does not mean the mere introduction of musical talent for the passive entertainment of the confused, but a program which includes activities by the inmates themselves.

HOW WOMEN CAN HELP

Clubwomen may help, Mrs. Milligan points, by "assisting the institutional authorities in building a music department of service, designed to meet local needs and conditions."

She continues:

"An ideal program may be kept in mind, embodying these features: Activities by the institutions' populations, to be developed gradually as to the possibilities of communal, choir, chorus or solo singing; instrumental playing, musical dramatics.

"Clubwomen should give assistance in the provision of such funds as may be secured by legislation, local appropriation and private contribution to train and employ efficient musical directors, supply such musical material as may be necessary, and organize such entertainment service as reason and opportunities will permit.

Brewster Women's Club Preparing for July Garden Party

Officers elected recently made Mrs. William K. Rowe again the head of the club. To serve with Mrs. Rowe next year are: Vice-presidents, Mrs. Charles Libby and Miss Dorothy Parker; recording secretary, Miss Teresa Ellis; corresponding secretary, Miss Fanny K. Hopkins; treasurer, Mrs. Willard Hamlin, and custodian, Mrs. Percy Newcomb.

Mississippi Women Present Gavel to Mrs. Grace M. Poole

"Our Grace" was honor guest and principal speaker at the recent convention of Mississippi Federation of Women's Clubs, when the gavel was presented.

1000 Are Expected to Attend Reunion of Chelsea High School

Prominent women from all over the country are expected to attend the fourth reunion of the Old Bellingham Chelsea High School Association, when close to 1000 graduates gather at the Hotel Statler June 21.

"Cherished Memories," a skit reminiscent of the old days, especially written by an alumnae of the school, Beulah Dix Flebbe, Hollywood movie scribe, will be presented as part of the entertainment and participated in by many Greater Boston women.

Costumed in the fashions of "the days when," six decades will be portrayed in the playlet with the roles taken by these women: Addy of 1880, Miss Anna May Rounds, Norwood, class of 1901; Edith of 1890, Mrs. Margaret Bakeman Wing, Melrose, class of 1902; Marion of 1850, Mrs. Frances Shepard Newton, Wollaston, class of 1897; Maude of 1890, Miss Alice Tuttle, Chelsea, class of 1896; Emma of 1900, Mrs. Lucy Morris Steer, Melrose Highlands, class of 1901; Peggy of 1910, Mrs. Marion Strout Brown, West Medford, class of 1900.

Mrs. William J. McDonald of the Hotel Statler has charge of the stage properties and is chairman of membership for the association. Mrs. McDonald will hold "open house" that day.

Alton Briggs, who was high school principal seven years ago when most of the women, actively participating in the event, will present the man's point of view at the reunion dinner, since hundreds of male graduates are to attend. Miss Sybil Holmes, vice-president of the association and of the Massachusetts Tercentenary Committee, will present the woman's point of view.

Pajama Beach Parade Is Colorful Sight

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 12.

THE SHIFTING sands of fashion move to reveal a beach decorated with delightful young things dressed in the most elaborate and colorful ocean outfits. No longer is a bathing suit surmounted by a beach robe considered correct or sufficient. We must wear pajamas and bathing ensembles if we would do right by Father Neptune—and our vacation.

Once again Mary Nowitzky and Schiaparelli, beach decorators par excellence, have outdone their previous efforts in some new and novel models riotous with color and pleasantly complicated in design for clothes dedicated to ocean and sun bathing.

In assembling your beach ensemble don't forget the hat and shoes, both of which should be closely related either in fabric or color to the rest of the suit. Just any old hat or a pair of espadrilles won't do any more in these days of formal informality.

To give you a fair idea of how we go down to the sea at the Lido, Dinard, Cap d'Antibes and other delectable spots, we are showing sketches of two beach suits.

The gaily checked affair is by Mary Nowitzky. Over a chocolate and white striped woolen jumper with white jersey collar and cuffs is placed gaily plaided pajamas in large chocolate and white checks. They are set on a close-fitting yoke, buttoning in front, and fall in a group of unpressed pleats at each side. The wide hat of coarse brown straw has a scarf and binding of plaided crepe, matching the pattern of the flannel pajamas.

Schiaparelli's bathing ensemble is most practical, complete and colorful. Over the black hand-knit, one-piece suit is worn a wrap-over skirt of rubberized fabric in canary yellow. A black woolen jacket is faced and cuffed with the yellow waterproofed material and has large patch pockets lined with this fabric and closing with a zipper fastening.

A large flat bag, combining green with yellow rubberized fabric in three different sized sections, each with a zipper closing, make a sensible accessory. The large sun hat is of yellow straw with a green ribbon and hand-knit wool slippers, exactly like the old-fashioned bedroom slippers, repeat the color accent of bright green.

He was a member of the special legislative recess commission which revised and recodified the fish and game laws. By profession, he is a consulting accountant. He has selected Warden Carl G. Victim Kidnaped in $3000 Holdup

Paris Society Folk Agog Over Races

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL
Universal Service Special Cable

Paris, June 12—These are days when, to be fashionable, you simply must be interested in horses.

It may be that you would not mount a horse for worlds and the mere presence of one in your vicinity gives you the shivers—but that does not matter.

You must simply love horses and talk horses, and almost be as though you were reared in a stable—to be in style.

For Paris is now embarked on the three-week period when horseflesh is in the ascendant. The Prix De Diane last Sunday, the Prix De Printemps, whit-Monday and a whole succession of races until the Grande Semaine winds up with the climactic Grand Prix at Longchamp—these classics of the turf with their accessory social entertainments sprinkled through the afternoons and evenings constitute the whole fashion calendar.

Everybody who is anybody—not to mention a few others whom Ambassador Dawes kicked off the social ladder so rudely last week—are now at the courses. One is literally in danger of being trampled under foot by fashionably gowned women, who, it must be confessed, seem much more interested in what is being worn than by the colors on the winning jockey.

It is really only at gathering places before and after the races that one is able to view in semi-peace these assembled maids and matrons who attract and distract men's minds from the more serious pursuit of horseflesh and its possibilities. These hot days make Armenonville in the Bois De Boulogne draw heavily.

There at luncheon was the Baroness Andre De Neuflize, the former Eva Barbey of New York, in printed chiffon—large yellow flowers—and long gloves, despite the heat. She wore a large, wide-brimmed straw hat, most becoming, albeit unneeded beneath the shade trees.

Miss Margery Whitehouse of New York appeared in a plaid crepe de chine with white collar and cuffs, while around its normal waistline was a small belt. A small sky-blue coat, reaching to the knees and lined by the same material as the dress, and a white crocheted hat by Agnes, with a white crocheted flower on one side, completed her costume.

ELOPES ON EVE OF WEDDING

The elopement of Annis Heywood Willman, 21, of Emery st., Cambridge, with another man three days before her scheduled marriage to Frank M. Church of Pearl st., Cambridge, was revealed at Cambridge City Hall yesterday.

Marriage intentions were filed by the couple on May 19, and the wedding was to have taken place last Thursday. On Monday Miss Willman disappeared. She telegraphed her mother that night that she had eloped to Manchester, N. H., with a man from Minneapolis.

The marriage intentions were cancelled at Cambridge City Hall yesterday by a member of Miss Willman's family.

It is said that the bride visited her parents last Friday, but has not yet talked with Church.

CITIZEN ARMY 24,000 STRONG

Advance units of New England's citizen army, 24,000 strong, will start within the next fortnight to the summer training camps.

Estimates made at First Corps Area headquarters call for the attendance at New England military camps this summer of 19,050 national guardsmen, 2200 reserve officers, 280 members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and 3400 students of the citizens' military training camps.

Camp Devens will be the destination of the major part of the citizen army's ranks calling for the encampment of 15,000 at the Ayer cantonment this summer.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Day of Grace on Federal Tax

The second installment of Federal income taxes is due June 15, and because the deadline falls on Sunday an extra day of grace will be given, according to Thomas W. White, U. S. collector of internal revenue.

Cash payments may be made all day Monday, and if the remittances is sent by mail it will be accepted as being on time provided it bears the cancellation stamp of June 16.

For the convenience of persons who wish to make the payment on Saturday Collector White has arranged for the office at 22 Pearl st. to be open until 2 p. m.

15 Years for Slayer

New York, June 12—Francis Schoppner, 19, was sentenced to from 7 to 15 years in prison for killing his employer, William A. Lorensen, over a $75 loan.

CLOUDS BLOCK ALTITUDE HOP

Washington, June 12 (US)—Cloud banks at 30,000 feet yesterday balked Lieut. Apollo Soucek, navy ace, in an attempt to better his own world's altitude record of 43,166 feet set last Thursday.

Lieut. Soucek declares he will make no further assaults on this record, but on the first favorable day will attempt to boost his world altitude record for seaplanes, now posted at 38,560 feet. He must leave Washington Saturday for the West Coast, where he goes on sea duty with the U. S. S. Lexington.

THREAT OF HOLY WAR GROWS

Universal Service Special Cable

Bombay, June 12—British forces continued their counter thrusts on India's northwestern and northeastern fronts last night, meeting with bitter opposition from rebel insurgents. On the northwestern frontier near Apeshawar, they face the gathering menace of a "Holy War."

Calcutta advices declared that reinforcements are being rushed to the Midnapore district in the northeast, where the rebels yesterday twice raided police stations.

At Chechahat for the first time since the outbreak, the rebels opened the attack. Police returned the fusillade and a number were killed and wounded on both sides.

British arms and ammunition were reported seized at Ghatal, subdivisional headquarters of the district, in a similar descent by natives. During the brief fray, the chief inspector and several policemen were reported to have fallen.

From Peshawar came word that Royal Air Force planes today renewed their bombing of mountain villages in an attempt to prevent the concentration of tribesmen for

DAILY ANTIQUE

No. 119

What a business our forefathers had to go through for light. No walking over to the wall and turning on power that illuminates your room or rooms to suit your needs. No, they had to prepare the tallow. That was a big job and then to the candle mold for the manufacturing business. That meant light to your forbears. Here we show you a candle mold made about the time Boston became a town. It is dated back to 1630 and is the property of Mrs. Jean E. Rich of 60 Temple st.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of antiques of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. If a photograph is not available, the American will send a cameraman to photograph the antique, providing the owner lives in Greater Boston. Address the Antique Editor, Boston Evening American, 8 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell, president of Eastern Steamship lines.

According to Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell, president of the Eastern Steamship Lines the summer season promises to be a banner one for the company and other coastwise services.

"The tercentenary celebration will be an important factor in increasing the passenger lists of steamers in the New York-Boston service, Boston-St. John service, Boston-Yarmouth service, New York-Yarmouth service and New York-Norfolk service," Capt. O'Donnell said.

"Those who can afford the time are expected to take the opportunity to visit Maine, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. This is indicated by heavy advance reservations.

"With a view toward accommodating patrons on the New York-Boston service, the two ships, New York and Boston, will be supplemented by the addition of a third ship, the steamer President Warfield, which will make its first sailing in this service from New York June 27."

NEW PLANTS IN BOSTON AREA

The transfer of two new industries from other parts of the United States to the Boston district is announced by the Boston Chamber of Commerce bureau of commercial and industrial affairs. The formation of 17 new industries in this area is also reported.

The new industries acquired from other sections are the American Locker Co. formerly of Pittsburgh, and the Codex Book Co. Inc., which removed from New York. The former company does an extensive business in leasing lockers for use in subways, waiting rooms and other public places and also does a large lock manufacturing and repair business. The manufacturing headquarters of this company are now located on Atlantic ave.

The Codex Co. now occupies part of the former Boston Piano Supply Co. plant on Broadway, Norwood. This company manufactures graphic chart sheets and also publishes technical and business books.

The other new industries include several clothing manufacturers, three furniture factories, three machine tool manufacturers of shoes and allied products, three food and beverage companies, and also manufacturers of household accessories, medicinal and other products.

A total of 80 new industries have been reported by the Chamber's Industrial Department for the first five months of the present year. In addition, it has reported 45 new plants and 47 expansions of industrial establishments.

The headmasters of St. Mark's school and of Fay school and the chairman of the Southboro school committee are left $20,000 in trust to establish and maintain a playground for children of Southboro, to be known as Choate Memorial Field. Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 4 just outside Watertown sq. and 641 house dates its construction from the very earliest stage of colonial life in New England. The year 1662 is assigned as the beginning.

THE OLD BROWN HOUSE WATERTOWN

The new part, nearest the roadside, was built and occupied by Capt. Abraham Browne, so that his son Samuel could live in the old part. That was over two centuries ago.

The original Abraham Browne in America was a first settler of Watertown. He was a very distinguished man, holding many trusts, perhaps more than any other person in the town. Among other duties he was "surveyor of the town." His descendants as well took active part in colonial affairs.

ESTATE LITIGATED

He was selectman from 1636-43 and died in 1650 as near as the records can show. The Browne estate was long delayed in settlement until the year 1663-4 when it finally descended to the heirs.

Then the land with the home stead came into possession of his grandson, Capt. Abraham Browne who willed a part of the land to his son Samuel, including the old home. After his father's death, about 1739 Samuel moved away from Watertown, but a few years later found the property in the hands of Jonathan Browne eldest son of Capt. Abraham Browne in turn, Jonathan Jr. resided there and later his son Maj. Adam Browne.

OLDEST HOUSE

It is probably the oldest house now standing in Watertown. Yet as the old homestead has seen generations of the Browne famers in America grow to responsible positions in spite of hardships and struggle with the wilderness and subsequent warfare.

Visitors are welcome to this house where luncheon and tea are served daily within its doors. The ancient structure is neighbor to a modern school, while across the street and all about it are crowded recently built dwellings but being in good repair, the Browne dwelling will probably outlast them all, if allowed to stand in the years to come.

Tomorrow: Old Wayside Mill, Somerville.

Plane Carrying 33 Tested in Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—The largest flying boat ever built in the United States took the air for the first time last night when it rose after a run of less than a quarter minute upstream on the surface of the Niagara river.

Today it was to be put through extensive tests here and on Friday will be flown to New York, where it will take its place as the 10th ship in the fleet on the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line.

The new plane, named the Mian [illegible] accommodations for 30 passengers and a crew of three. It has a wing span of 100 feet, is 62 feet long, and is capable of a speed of 126 miles an hour.

CONSTRUCTION SHOWS BOOM

Washington, June 12 (INS)—Surpassing all previous records, construction contracts for public works and public utilities for the first five months of 1930 amounted to $568,000,000, the Commerce Department announced today.

This was an increase of 21 per cent over 1929 and of 35 per cent over the average for the last five years. Reports were compiled for 37 states.

The 1930 figure surpasses by $78,000,000 the previous high record of $510,000,000, established in 1928.

Total construction awards in this period, including residential and non-residential, amounted to $2,037,000,000 for the five months, or an 18 per cent decrease, as compared to 1929.

Fog Keeps Bermuda Plane on Ground

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—The proposed round-trip, non-stop flight to Bermuda in the monoplane Columbia was called off for today by Roger Q. Williams, the pilot, because of a heavy fog. The flight was to have started at 4 a. m., E. S. T., and Williams hoped to complete the round trip in 35 hours.

The plane, the same one in which Clarence D. Chamberlin flew to Germany, was poised on the runway ready for the take-off when the fog started rolling in from the southwest.

AS YOU COOK DICED CARROTS YOU CAN EMPHASIZE THEIR FLAVOR DELICIOUSLY BY ADDING a dash of Sugar

Often carrots are tasteless because their original sugar content has been lost by keeping them too long. By adding a dash of sugar at the same time that you add salt, you will restore this goodness. This rule applies to peas and tomatoes as well.

A dash of sugar will heighten the flavor of many familiar, nourishing foods. Use sugar this way in preparing children's meals. You will find the youngsters relishing cereal, stewed fruits and vegetables much more when these foods are flavored with sugar.

Sugar is nature's supreme seasoning. And when used in wholesome desserts, such as puddings and custards, it fills an important place in the diet of young and old. Just ask your doctor about this. Sugar promotes the necessary flow of gastric juices and makes digestion easy and more complete. The Sugar Institute.

STEPDAUGHTERS of WAR

by HELEN ZENNA SMITH

Tosh Forms a Dislike for Skinny and Asks for Her Removal

"I feel pounds lighter," says Tosh. "If only I could soak and soak and soak in a real bath." Our thoughts fly to big, white-tiled bath rooms of home and the lovely scented soap.

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Helen Smith, known as 'Smithy,' is a member of the English motor-ambulance corps in France. Her first convoy duty was a nightmare, and if it had not been for Tosh, a fellow-worker, she would have collapsed. She returned to a hardly eatable meal, half dead with fatigue and shaken in nerves.

Chapter 2

That is how I became a scavenger. Commandant is dreadfully efficient. Like most dreadfully efficient women she is universally loathed. Even The B.F. has got as far as calling her "Miss You-Know-Itch."

"I feel pounds lighter," says Tosh. "If only I could soak and soak and soak in a real bath. I'm stinking."

We are all stinking.

Our life is fly to bath [illegible] gleaming silver taps and glass enclosed shower cubicles fitted with thick glass valves loaded with jar upon jar of scented bath salts, white, green, mauve—different colors and different perfumes, lilac, verbena, carnation, lily of the valley.

Steeped to Neck
In Their Dream Baths

We see ourselves steeped to the neck in over-hot, over-scented water—in our hands are clasped enormous, springy sponges foaming with delicious soap-suds, expensive soap-suds, only the most expensive will suffice—sandalwood, scented oatmeal, odoriferous violet.

Massage brushes lie to hand, long-handled narrow brushes with quaint, bulbous bristles of hollow rubber that catch the middle of the back just where the arms are too short to reach—we scrub and scrub and scrub until we are clean and pink and tingling and glowing—we lie in a pleasant semi-coma until the water begins to cool, but emerging has no terrors. Electric fires glow softly, before them are spread incredibly huge bath-sheets, soft, lavender scented, monogrammed, waiting to caress our dripping bodies, to smother them in voluptuous warmth. Now we are dry—we pepper our newly-born selves with talcum powder. "June Roses" fills the air with its fragrance, daintily argues with the scent of the bath-water, triumphs—

"Half a pint of icy water between six of us," says Tosh. "Oh, hell, there's a war on, they tell me."

We munch stolidly.

My cigarettes have given out. Tosh gets the cups, wipes them with a handkerchief, and divides the contents of the Bovril carefully.

"If there isn't a parcel soon with a new supply we go out empty tomorrow," says Tosh.

Skinny wakens with a yawn, exhibiting a hideous vulcanite plate in her lower jaw. Skinny is smart and tolerably good-looking in uniform, but when she first awakens she reminds one uncannily of a corpse. Her face is yellow with the skin stretched tightly across the high cheek-bones and there are queer bags under her eyes. Tosh says the bags mean kidney trouble. Certainly Skiny is out of her flea bag every quarter of an hour an awful nuisance when we are nervy and easily awakened. She isn't very quiet about it, either. When Skinny is asleep her rather large mouth pinches up tightly angrily, and she is irresistibly like a photograph a gardener of ours showed me once of his mother, taken in the coffin after death.

Snubs Skinny
Tosh Dislikes Her

Skinny glances at her wristwatch and grabs the biscuit tin. "You've cut your hair off," she remarks to Tosh.

Tosh gives her a quick glance and turns her back. She loathes Skinny, and never misses an opportunity of snubbing her—not the good-natured ragging to which she treats the B.F., but the kind of snub that makes those present wish they had never been born. It is Skinny's own fault. She will talk to Tosh. Tosh has asked her straight out not to, but she will persist. Tosh wants Commandant to move Skinny to one of the two-bed or three-bed cubicles—there are often vacancies when the girls go sick, but Commandant knows Tosh wants it, and therefore Skinny will remain with us to the bitter end.

DR. COPELAND WARNS AGAINST SLUM

Mrs. Curley Buried Friday

CARDINAL TO PRESIDE AT SERVICE

Leaders of City, State and Business World in Tribute to Mayor's Wife

From the home in the Jamaicaway, where she had lived to see the political triumphs of her husband, the body of Mrs. Mary Curley, wife of the mayor of Boston, will be carried in sorrowful procession to the Cathedral of the Holy Cross tomorrow.

There, at a solemn high mass of requiem, Cardinal O'Connell will preside.

Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, vicar general and pastor of St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, will be celebrant of the mass, Rev. James F. Kelly, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Jamaica Plain, will be deacon, and Rev. Neil A. Cronin, administrator of the Cathedral, will be sub deacon. Rev. John R. Wall, will be master of ceremonies.

LIES WITH DAUGHTER

Prayers at the grave in Old Calvary Cemetery will be read by Rev. Fr. Kelly. Mrs. Curley will lie by the side of her daughter Dorothea.

Reservations were made at the Cathedral for Governor and Mrs. Frank G. Allen and two aides, and former Governor and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, and for hosts of others high in the political, professional and business world.

At the Curley home the spacious rooms were fairly buried in the masses of floral tributes that came from all over the state and from various parts of the country.

MESSAGES POUR IN

Messages of condolence were received by the Curley family from Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York and Democratic nominee in the last presidential election; from Bishop William Lawrence of Boston; from former Governor and Mrs. Fuller, and from many others.

The pallbearers will include her 3 physicians, Drs. Martin J. English, Charles Whelan and A. McK. Fraser, and Gen. Edward L. Logan, Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, Francis J. Brennan, City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan and Thomas J. Johnson.

Happy in Secret

TUFTS' SECOND secret wedding involving football stars came to light today in announcement of the elopement and wedding in Portsmouth, N. H., last December of Chester B. Storey, 2d, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Dorothy Margot Brewer of Brookline.

ONE RESCUED FROM BACK BAY FIRE

Two Alarms for a Blaze That Starts in Fruit Store and Spreads to Others

One man was rescued, traffic tied up and damage estimated at $10,000 caused by a two-alarm fire of undetermined origin in the building at Massachusetts ave and Boylston st., Back Bay today.

The blaze started in the basement of John Mulingano's fruit store at 135 Massachusetts ave., on the first floor of the three-story brick building opposite the Fenway Theater.

By the time the firemen arrived it had burned through to the shoe shine parlor of Joseph Tobias at 123 Massachusetts ave, and from there to Fanny Farmer's candy shop at 131, and the Eagle Cleaners & Dyers at 137.

Because the upper part of the building is being remodeled, a second alarm was turned in, bringing additional apparatus.

Everett Marston, a carpenter, working on the second floor, was collecting his tools when the place filled with smoke and he stepped out a window to the coping over the candy shop. Firemen raised a short ladder and Marston descended safely with his tools.

Traffic on both Boylston st and Massachusetts ave, was tied up until the blaze was extinguished.

Motorcyclist Injured

Thrown from his motorcycle when it collided with a truck at Parkway and North Shore rd., Revere, last night, Horace Johnson of Hawthorn rd, New Bedford, suffered a possible skull fracture.

TELLS SOCIAL HEADS HOME BIG FACTOR IN LIFE

Woman Speaker Declares Fear Is Worst Weapon to Use With Probation Child

"A community is not civilized until every family is placed in a home of its own," declared Dr. Royal S. Copeland, U. S. Senator from New York today at a special meeting on housing, held in connection with the National Conference of Social Work convention here today.

"Bad housing is an invasion of the health and morals of our people and is destructive of good citizenship," he said. "Nothing adds more to the self-respect and good citizenship of a family than to have it housed in a decent building. A slum district is a reproach to any city."

An answer to the indictment that organized social work is "fundamentally immoral" because it tries to help individuals one by one instead of improving general social conditions, was made by Jane Purcell Guild of Richmond, Va.

"Few agencies are doing regular scientific research work of their own records," Mrs. Guild charged.

"If they were, they would be surprised to learn how few permanent adjustments they have made in personalities and probably some of these adjustments would have come about without the social case worker's activity anyway. We do not know to what extent we merely alleviate instead of prevent."

Other speakers at this session were Dr. George H. Bigelow, Massachusetts commissioner of health, Boston; Leyton E. Carter of the Cleveland Foundation and John A. Fitch of the New York school of social work.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Church Mission of Help, Miriam Van Waters, president of the national conference of social service, scored the practice of inciting children to good behavior through fear.

"There is spiritual bankruptcy in the social worker who strives to arouse the motive of fear in a child," she said.

FEAR IS WRONG WEAPON

"The excuse is made that the child is incapable of higher motives. The truth is that there are some workers with children and teachers who are incapable of supplying the essentials of an ideal person for the child to imitate.

"The probation officer who said to his little probationer: 'Do you want to grow up to be like that crook, or do you want to be a man like me?' was answered, 'I don't want to be like either one of you.'

"Too frequently appeals to children are made on the basis of fear. The grossest examples are threats of corporal punishment. More subtle forms are used by some case workers and fear of failure or of being disgraced are invoked."

Group meetings for all branches of the conference will be concluded with dinners this evening. Registration of delegates is still continuing, although the number attending has already topped the 5000 mark.

Story, Tufts Star, Wed in Secret After Eloping

Another Tufts football romance came to light today when it was learned that Chester B. Story, 2d, of Pittsburgh, Pa., all-round athlete, was secretly married on Dec. 18 to Miss Dorothy Margot Brewer of Brookline.

They eloped to Portsmouth, N. H., and kept it a secret until April when Mrs Dorothy Brewer of 25 Elm st., Brookline, mother of the bride, accidentally learned of it.

Story and his bride leave for New York Sunday to break the news to his parents. His father is a Tufts graduate and well-known in college alumni circles.

The bridegroom, whose elopement followed that of his teammate, Gene Tobey, Tufts football star, is a noted athlete. He played tackles on the football team for the last two years, center in basketball and is a pitcher on the varsity nine. He is expected to do the twirling for Tufts in the U. S. S. Southery game tomorrow.

The new Mrs. Story was graduated from Brookline High school last Tuesday. Her husband who is a junior in the Liberal Arts School expects to finish college.

FIELDING FIRST TO ENTER RACE

"A fight to a finish" for the Democratic nomination for attorney general was announced today by Henry P. Fielding, former assistant district attorney under three Suffolk county prosecutors, Hill, Pelletier and O'Brien.

Mr. Fielding is first in the field for the nomination this year. He is a former newspaperman, Boston university graduate, and Spanish War veteran. One of his sons is a Technology graduate, another will be graduated from Harvard next week, and a third is a student at Boston College High school. A daughter is in her third year at Emanuel college. The family home is at 15 Montague st., Dorchester.

HAVE DOUBLE WEDDING

Misses Mary Edna and Ethel Virginia Johnson, daughters of Mr and Mrs Joseph B. Johnson of 41 Newburn st., Roslindale, were married at Sacred Heart Church Roslindale, yesterday, at a double ceremony, on the silver wedding anniversary of their parents.

Miss Mary Johnson married Francis J. Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lang of Wood ave., Mattapan, while her sister, Miss Ethel, became the bride of John J. McDonough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McDonough of Harvard at, Hyde Park. Rev. John J. Hart performed the ceremony.

The church was thronged. Later, at Ober's bungalow, Mattapan, more than 300 guests extended best wishes to the bridal couples and to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson on the occasion of their 25th anniversary.

Miss Mary C. Hines was maid of honor for Mary Edna, while Miss Lucy E. Scholz was bridesmaid and Leo V. Johnson was best man. Attending Ethel Virginia was Miss Alice Johnson, as maid of honor, with Miss Mary T. McDonough as bridesmaid, and Thomas E. McDonough was John J. McDonough's best man.

ALLEN ACCEPTS GOV. WINTHROP TABLET IN BEHALF OF STATE

D.A.R. GIFT MARKS SHIP LANDING

Arbella Came to Found Massachusetts Bay Colony 300 Years Ago Today

A bronze tablet, placed on the wall of the granite entrance to the west wing of the State House, near the Hooker statue, gift of the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and commemorating the arrival of the frigate Arbella bearing Governor John Winthrop and the charter of the Massachusetts Bay Colony on June 12, 1630, was accepted today by Governor Allen.

The brief exercises were opened by Rev. Charles H. Moss of Malden, chaplain of the Senate. Mrs. Russell William Magna, chairman of the State D. A. R. tercentenary committee, then introduced Mrs. Stephen Perkins Hurd, State regent, who presented the tablet to Governor Allen for the State.

The unveiling was done by Miss Alice V. Daniels, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Lester S. Daniels of West Somerville.

In a short address, Governor Allen accepted the tablet and paid a tribute to the early colonists and the D. A. R.

Salem Greets Arbella in Colorful Pageant

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

America's 300th birthday party, held in Forest River Park today, probably never will be surpassed as a reproduction of a historical event of world significance.

Historically correct to the most minute detail, the pageant presented by Salem in commemoration of the arrival of the Massachusetts Bay Colony charter on the Arbella is a masterpiece of antiquarian art fully appreciated by the jubilant thousands crowding the city for the event.

Schools and stores close at noon and the busy hum of industry will be stilled while the entire population keeps watch with the 250 "pioneer villagers" at Forest River Park for the arrival of the good ship Arbella, due at 3 o'clock.

The sloping hillside along the shore, adjoining the reconstructed pioneer village, will be black with eager thousands gathered for this event before the 1930 Arbella rounds the point. Three acres of shore line have been reserved for seats provided for the largest crowd that Salem has ever entertained.

WHOLE CITY DRESSED UP

With the whole city dressed up in flags, flowers and freshly painted homes, the citizens are exulting in the fact that the flagship of the Massachusetts colonists fleet landed in Naumkeag (Salem) harbor on June 12, 1630. On it came Gov. John Wintrop and his companions, and the charter through which the first free civil government in the world was established on these shores.

The "ducking stool," where habitually nagging wives were disciplined, the stocks and pillory, the ever present fear of marauding Indians and other features of daily life as it might have been on June 12, 1630, when the Arbella was sighted, are being re-enacted in a great educational pageant.

Pupils of private schools from many distant points and thousands of Salem school children are to view the historical pageant today, an event unsurpassed for educational value

BIG GAIN FOR HUB SUBURBS

That more persons have been added to the population of the suburbs of Boston, within the last ten years, than in any previous decade, is the assertion of the civic bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce

The total suburban population in 1930 is 1,171,880, a gain of 236,068 since 1920, according to the tentative census figures compiled by the bureau.

Even if the population of Boston proper remains at the 1925 figure of 780,000, the total population of Metropolitan Boston will exceed 1,950,000, which will unquestionably place Boston as the fourth largest metropolitan area in the country.

The Metropolitan Boston, for which the chamber has compiled these figures, consists of Boston and 42 cities and towns, mostly within a 15-mile radius of the State House. Its total land area is 457 square miles.

For the 1930 census, however, the Chamber is endeavoring to have the federal census bureau recognize a larger district as Metropolitan Boston. This proposed district would include 64 cities and towns, and its area would be 751 square miles.

All of the communities would be within the 20-mile radius. In 1920 the population of this district was 1,849,318. Complete 1930 population data for this area are not at hand, but indications are that the total will be in excess of 2,175,000.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE SELECTS BOSTON FOR STATE CONVENTION

CHIEFS SHY AT DRY LAW ISSUE

Liggett Expected to Continue as Chairman to Hold Some Antis in Line

At the Republican State Committee meeting today in Beacon st. Boston was selected for the G. O. P. State convention the last Saturday in September.

Amos L. Taylor made announcement of Boston's selection.

Prior to the big meeting, the executive committee lunched at the Hotel Bellevue and passed on charters for new clubs formed within the organization

The liquor question was not scheduled for discussion notwithstanding the fact that the party is rated as two-thirds dry in this state.

And although the Republican national committeeman, Louis K. Liggett, is an anti and the object of attacks by such party leaders as former Governor Fuller, it is virtually assured he will continue in his present position until the end of the fall campaign

Liggett's decision not to resign, it is figured by some strategists, will have a tendency to hold some of the antis in line

THOUSANDS GET CHECKS FROM IRISH FUND

Each Is for $5.80 From Remainder of the Republic Bond Issue Proceeds

Thousands of members of Catholic and Irish fraternal societies and others who bought $10 bond certificates for the "Republic of Ireland" loan in Massachusetts today received checks each for $5.80.

Accompanying each check was a notice which read:

"Important notice. The enclosed check is a payment on account of the claim you filed with the receivers for the benefit of bond certificate holders of 'Republic of Ireland' loans, and represents your proportionate share of the funds now being distributed by them pursuant to an order of distribution dated March 20, 1930, made by the Hon. Curtis A. Peters, justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, in an action entitled 'Irish Free State, et al, vs. Guaranty Safe Deposit Company, et al,' as modified by an order of the appellate division of the Supreme Court, entered May 8, 1930.

HALF OF FUNDS SPENT.

"The funds held by the receivers are a part of the amounts subscribed to the First National Loan of the Republic of Ireland and the Second External Loan of the Republic of Ireland.' More than half of the sums realized from these loans had been expended by the trustees of Dail Eireann at the time the court action was started, and only the remainder, amounting to less than half, ever came into the hands of the receivers. THAT IS WHY THERE IS ENOUGH TO PAY ONLY A LITTLE OVER HALF THE AMOUNT OF EACH APPROVED CLAIM.

"The receivers have more than 150,000 checks to distribute and these are being mailed at the rate of about 3000 a day. While the checks are being mailed the receivers have no time to answer inquiries regarding claims.

WRITE AFTER SEPT. 1

"Please, therefore, tell your friends who have filed claims not to write to the receivers until after September 1, 1930. Any claimant whose claim has been allowed and who does not receive his check by September, 1930, should then communicate with the office of the receivers, No. 17 Liberty st., New York city.

"The check should be deposited for collection as soon as possible, either in your bank or through your storekeeper.

(Signed) "Peter J. Brady, J. Edward Murphy, John L. Buckley, Receivers."

An alleged attack which resulted from a carelessly tossed piece of popcorn will cost Edmund E. Hayes of Bonad rd., Arlington, just $126.75, according to a verdict of a jury in Judge A. E. Pinansky's session of the Middlesex Superior Civil Court at East Cambridge yesterday.

According to the evidence in the case, Carl Sandmark a minor, also living on Bonad rd., tossed a piece of popcorn into the air while he was passing the Hayes home, one day. It struck in the face and frightened Virginia Hayes, 3½, who was carrying into her house.

Her father, against whom the verdict was returned in favor of Sandmark, chased and caught the latter, who alleged that he slapped and kicked him. Hayes denied the kicking and testified he simply administered an old fashioned spanking. The jury, after deliberation decided against him

At one of the final discussions, Ralph G. Fog Delays 1000 Hub Fight Fans; Ships Held Up

Fog bound aboard the S. S. New York in Long Island Sound, nearly 1000 Boston fight fans who sailed for New York last night were transferred to shore at Long Island City in motorboats today.

Word of the transfer which was effected without mishap, was received from George Grimm, Boston Evening American sports writer with the party, over long distance wire from White Store landing, where the motorboats docked.

The fans were taken on to New York in buses, the transfer from ship to shore requiring about 10 minutes and the bus trip an additional 50.

All of those who wished to take a chance on the liner docking at New York in time for them to reach the fight were allowed to do so.

S.S. BOSTON DELAYED

As is the custom of the Eastern line in cases of heavy fog when docking is delayed, the transfers were made in motorboats entering New York's fog worn bounded confusion.

Throughout the trip last night the New York's fog horn boomed continuously.

The S S Boston of the same line, inbound, was fog bound for several hours off the Cape Cod canal and reached the city long behind schedule as the impenetrable gray blanket, now in its sixth day, tied up shipping generally from Baltimore to Portland, Me.

Another liner, the S S Dorchester, Boston-bound from Philadelphia, was reported here to be off Wing's Neck light in Buzzards Bay waiting for the shroud to lift in order that it might proceed with safety through the Cape Cod canal.

AIR TRAFFIC TIED UP

All planes at the Boston airport remained grounded. Since Sunday a passenger plane has taken off or been logged in, with the exceptions of Colonial Air Transport, New England and Western and Eastern Air Express virtually at a standstill because of the lack of visibility.

Little prospect of relief from the fog was contained in the weather forecast which predicted continued cloudy skies tonight and tomorrow an east wind and little change in temperature

The fog belt extended inland for many miles, slowing motor traffic but the extreme western portions of New England reported clear weather, which extended westward to Ohio

More than 130,000 such checks are to be distributed by court order. Half of the fund raised by selling Irish Republic bonds was expended, it is stated, and the $5.80 represents the pro-rata refund of the remainder for each of the many bonds that were purchased. 'CAMERADE' WILL BE SEQUEL TO 'ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT'

LEW AYRES TO HEAD CAST

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—"Camerade," by Erich Maria Remarque, author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," to be produced by Universal, is in a happier mood. Although "All Quiet on the Western Front" will gross $8,000,000 and is regarded as one of the finest pictures ever made, I am not so sure a sequel as somber would be equally profitable. Most people like to laugh and artistry becomes secondary when it is too gloomy.

In saying this we are taking none of the glory away from "All Quiet on the Western Front," for it is an achievement that [illegible] [illegible] Lew Ayres [illegible] ated with All Quiet on the Western Front will [illegible] have [illegible]

IRENE DELROY is openly enthusiastic over Hollywood. Most of the New York actresses come out prepared to accept this country with reservations. Miss Delroy has taken the town to her heart and says quite frankly she hopes she will never have to leave. She plays the lead in "C[illegible] of the East," which Al Green will direct for Warner Brothers. Don Alvarado and Bramwell Fletcher have been signed for the male leads, two extremes if ever there were. Bramwell Fletcher is a fair-haired Englishman, very British while Don Alvarado is a Spaniard, dark in coloring.

Vodvil Who's Who

Flo Campbell, of the variety team of Morris and Campbell at the Keith-Albee, was born in Philadelphia and made her first professional appearance as one of "MacMann's Watermelon Girls." She was so tiny that when the company played in New York City where the Gerry Society was on the lookout for under-age performers, she had to sit way out on the very edge of her chair on the stage so her feet would touch the floor. She was one of the "Nine Merry Youngsters" in vaudeville on the old Orpheum circuit when Joe Morris, her present partner, joined the company. She was then 17 and he 19. They fell in love, married, and growing up, launched forth in their own act.

Capital Welcomes Brazilian Executive

Washington, Jun 12 (AP)—Washington today extended an official greeting to President-elect Julio Prestes of Brazil. Returning President Hoover's visit to Brazil last year, the distinguished guest conveyed to the chief executive the respects of the neighboring republic.

The belated arrival last night of the Brazilian executive, due to a heavy fog in New York harbor which delayed docking of the Almirante Jacequay, did not detract from the ceremony of welcome which greeted him here.

BOSTON'S MUSIC SEASON REVIEWED BY CRITIC

By MOSES SMITH

BOSTON IS ABOUT to celebrate, officially, its 300th birthday. What is its status as a capital of music? Let us take the season just passed, assuming it to be average, and we shall see. The very center of Boston's musical season is the subscription concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Following the grand and now almost legendary regime of Karl Muck, the fortunes and reputation of this orchestra sank considerably. The coming of Serge Koussevitsky, six years ago, rekindled interest, beyond even that under Muck.

FOR THE FIRST TIME both Friday afternoon and Saturday evening concerts were sold out for the season in advance. This condition has continued. In addition, the orchestra has re-established itself, here and in the cities it visits, as one of the greatest in the world.

Serge Koussevitzky

Mr. Koussevitzky was intensely disliked here by many because of his persistence in featuring new and unheard scores on his programs. I was among those who felt that he was neglecting the classics in favor of shoddy modern musical material. I am glad to say that these six years have been an education for me. Many of the pieces that have been introduced are not worth playing a second time and have not, in fact, been repeated. But this is inevitable; it is the penalty of an open mind. On the other hand this catholicity has enabled us to hear and see in what way the modern musical speech is tending. It has given us an opportunity to hear some first-rate musical works and some second-rate ones too that have been worth hearing.

MR. KOUSSEVITZKY has had faults which his detractors have exaggerated, I regret to say. He still has some. But even his severest critics admit that in the six years he has been in Boston he has blossomed as an interpreter, become riper and maturer.

There is no competitor of consequence to the Boston Symphony Orchestra—and there should be. The People's Symphony Orchestra occupied that position for ten years, ever more hazardously. During the last years its concerts have become only occasional. Its attempt was perhaps brave; it was undoubtedly on the other hand, poorly managed.

The chamber orchestra has been almost nonexistent here. One or two concerts through the whole season indicated that Boston doesn't want them. Other forms of chamber music have alternately flourished and suffered. On the whole, however, I should say that we have been fortunate. There have been more worthwhile concerts of string quartets and trios than in any previous season I can recall—and here numbers are significant.

CONCERTS OF VIRTUOSI of the piano, the violin, various instruments; concerts of singers, of various celebrities: these we have always had and will continue to have. The past season was an average one in the number and quality of those we heard. From the point of view of business the season was probably a failure. Audiences continued to decrease in size, so that so-called sure sell-outs at Symphony Hall were no longer sure. In my opinion the cause for this condition is mechanical music. I think the condition is essentially temporary; that the interest in mechanical music will win over new music-lovers who demand the real thing in addition to its imitation. Moreover, the process is to a certain extent salutory. It will drive mediocrities and misfits off the stage where they do not belong.

Without attempting an actual account I feel safe in saying that there were as many concerts of debutants and near-debutants as in past seasons, and just as much evidence of mediocrity, not to say bad training and downright incompetence. How long this type of concert will survive is a question; but it seems to me that its days are numbered by the radio and phonograph.

THERE REMAINS OPERA toward which Boston reacts not as a capital of music, but as a small town. Two weeks, not quite completed, by the Cosmopolitan Opera Co.; a single week out of a scheduled four by the new Boston Grand Opera Co.; and two grand and glorious weeks by the Chicago Co., with what we were told was the record attendance here for any attraction. Over $[illegible] was taken in at the box-office.

These are the bare facts, which everybody knows. What is behind them? We can dismiss the Cosmopolitan Opera failure as "one of those things," though I think its producers gave a good and worth-while show for the money. But the more ambitious Boston company was another matter. It was handicapped from the very start by a suspicion that another "bust" was in the offing, and you can't blame Boston for being suspicious. On the other hand, professional musicians failed to recognize the merit of the venture.

INSTEAD THOSE sophisticates, far from helping, did everything possible to discourage the enterprise. This, in my opinion, was not only mistaken, but unfair as well. It would require endless space to detail the arguments of these people and their adversaries. It is difficult to draw a single issue out of the complicated discussion, but here it is—very roughly: Is it better to have a permanent company giving many performances of good music in just an average performance, or two weeks of excellent performances by a company like the Chicago?

My answer is: By all means, let's have more performances. The music is the thing. So long as the performance doesn't do violence to the intention of the composer, it is better to hear good music often than to hear only occasional excellent performances.

HELPS DRIVE OF ARTKINO GUILD

Artkino Guild's energetic efforts to establish a permanent art film theater in Boston are at last to be realized by obtaining re-enforcements in coming under direct control of The Little Theater Association.

The Little Theater Association, having successfully completed its membership drive in Newark, N. J., built and opened the first Little Theater in that city, standing there today as the pride of the community. Pursuing the policy of expansion, the Little Theater Association has completed negotiations to throw its full support toward the building of "The Screen" in Boston as the second theater in the chain.

Under the leadership of Stuart I. Whitmarsh, president of The Little Theater Association, the Newark Motion Picture Guild, an intensive membership campaign will be started at once from its offices in the Pierce building, Copley sq.

The announcement further makes clear that the same high standard of Artkino is to be maintained and that the advisory board consisting of Eva Le Gallienne, Cornelia Stratton Parker, Lothrop Stoddard, Henry T. Parker, Aaron Richmond, Henry Wardsworth Longfellow Dana, Walter F. Bogner, Lloyd G. Del Castillo, David K. Niles, Jacques Hoffman and George Kraska are to remain the guiding spirits.

American Champ Confident He Will Beat Schmeling

GERMAN CHALLENGER FOR TITLE

MAX SCHMELING, 24-year-old German challenger for the world heavyweight crown, is eagerly awaiting the bell that will send him after Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium tonight. While the majority of fight experts feel that Sharkey has too much experience for Max, there are many who think that the German may surprise everyone by defeating Sharkey. The big question concerns Schmeling's ability to take punishment.

"I'LL WIN BY K. O.," SAYS SHARKEY

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

New York, June 12—I am ready for the sound of the gong which will send me into action against Max Schmeling in our 15-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Yankee Stadium tonight. I believe I shall win by a knockout.

It is not my intention to try to name the round when I shall send Max down to defeat. I have 15 rounds in which to reach my objective and I do not intend to leave any openings for the German champion.

My battle plan for Schmeling is much like it was for my winning contest with Tommy Loughran. I shall use my left hand to its fullest advantage and when the opportunity presents itself, I shall blaze away with my right duke.

Never before in my career as a boxer have I been in such splendid physical condition as I am in right now.

I expect to enter the ring weighing around 198 pounds. This will mean I shall have all of my strength and vitality when I start letting my punches breeze. In the event it should be a long fight, I shall be able to work off four or five pounds without losing any of my vitality.

I expect a hard, tough fight when I tackle Schmeling. The German champion has beaten Risko and Paulino. In each of these contests he displayed a heavy punch.

Sharkey Confident He Will Win

Max is also young. He is only 24. He is also ambitious, as he has been fighting his way to the top.

One would be unwise to consider such a type of opponent too lightly.

When I tackle Schmeling I shall be prepared to battle one of the greatest heavyweights to come to the front in the past decade. By considering the bout in this light there will not be any danger of my easing up and leaving an opening for the German titleholder.

Johnny Risko tells me he underestimated Schmeling's ability and as a result was knocked out. I shall not make this mistake.

Gene Tunney told Johnny Buckley, my manager, that if I utilize all of my boxing ability that I should win from Schmeling. You may be sure I shall do this.

The bout with Schmeling is the great opportunity of my boxing career and I intend to make the most of it.

I am confident I shall keep the heavyweight title in America [illegible] and in the ring.

Mother Tells Max to Keep Head High

Berlin, June 12 (INS)—Mama Schmeling, nervous and excited over the outcome of her son's fight tonight with Jack Sharkey, sent the following message to Maxie through International News Service today.

Which, translated means:

"Keep your head high, my boy We believe in you and are praying for you."

FLATLEY SEES EASY WIN FOR JACK

By NICK FLATLEY

New York, June 12—Jack Sharkey should be heavyweight champion of the world at this time tomorrow.

The Newton Squire, by all the signs and portents, will have little trouble brushing aside the [illegible]ing threat for the edification of a capacity crowd at Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's milk fund show this evening. He should do the little job in three or four rounds.

Nick Flatley

Mister Sharkey has everything in his favor—class, experience, punching ability. And he wants to win this one, which is very important in the case of the Squire.

There has been quite a bit of Schmeling ballyoo hereabouts lately. Experts have been picking Max, and talking about his chances. But that has been part of the build-up. The German did not impress the boys much with his training stunts, and interest began to fade. The reversal of opinion has stirred it up quite sufficiently.

The big ball yard practically will be sold out when the gladiators march in this evening. There was nothing at the box offices this morning but the back rows of the $28 tickets. The boys who came to buy cheaper seats grumbled, but they dug down and took what they could get.

Good [illegible] were bringing 25 bucks a copy, with the demand away ahead of the supply. When New York gets a fever it is very virulent, and the fight epidemic has swept the city.

Sharkey Is 8 to 5 Choice to Win

The street corners and hotel lobbies are jammed with restless debaters, arguing the pros and cons. There isn't much betting. Sharkey is an 8 to 5 favorite, but the Schmeling hopers, mostly are holding out for 4 to 1 on the knockout proposition.

It would seem that they expect their brawny German boy to have his shoulders coated with resin but are willing to take a long chance on a miracle.

Everything, from where your correspondent sees things, points to a Sharkey triumph. Jack should take Max as easily as Tunney took Heeney.

Schmeling is young—24—but the Squire is only 27, and these big boys generally reach the peak in their late 20's. Maxey is a tough, rugged citizen, but he hasn't had a fight in a year, and he never has faced a battler as clever and as hard a hitter as the American champ.

The boys who have been peering at the camps tell us that Schmeling is a "sucker" for a left hand, and Mister Sharkey escorts the most deadly left that has come into the ring since Dempsey was good.

If Schmeling cannot block that rapier left, he cannot get anchored to put across his much advertised right. He will be blinded in a couple of rounds, and the gamest fighter in the world finds it difficult to recover his punch, when aiming for an elusive opponent through a haze of blood.

Schmeling never has shown much of a left hand, which should make him a target for the Squire's right, which is a powerful weapon. It was deadly enough to stop Tommy Loughran when it landed on the part of his hair. And Tommy ranked with the best of the defensive fighters.

The youth and strength of Schmeling comes in for much comment and consideration, but as we have pointed out, Mister Sharkey is just about at his physical peak.

Squire Is in Perfect Trim

He is as strong as several lions. A lot of piffle, the yarns about him being in danger if he does not win in the early rounds. Sharkey has been in training for the matter of two solid years. Not once since he started to prepare for the Stribling fight down in Miami has he allowed himself to get out of condition.

He has not had to kill himself to get ready, and consequently the grind of training has not ruffled his temperament. Mentally he goes into this just as calm and unruffled as the carefree German. This morning he was hopping and kidding around the hotel lobby, as if he hadn't a care in the world.

"The fight," he laughed, when someone tried to interview him, "that will be tonight. Why think of it till then?" and he wasn't putting on an act.

Sharkey will have a big [illegible]. He will [illegible] no doubt if Schmeling will scale

AMERICAN CHAMPION READY

JACK SHARKEY, American heavyweight champion, is set for the biggest bout of his career against Max Schmeling of Germany. The Hub sailor was never in better condition and is confident he will knock Schmeling out. Sharkey will weigh 197 or 198 for the bout, which will give him a decided edge over Max, who will weigh about 185. The title battle has aroused more interest than any bout in the last two years. A crowd close to 80,000 is expected to witness the contest.

Dilboy Bouts Put Over Till Monday

Dilboy Post's amateur boxing tournament, scheduled to be held last night at Dilboy Field, Somerville, was postponed on account of rain. This tourney will be staged next Monday night at Dilboy Field instead of Friday evening as previously announced.

Read Tomorrow's American for Best Accounts of Fight

Tonight's world heavyweight championship fight between Jack Sharkey of Boston and Max Schmeling of Germany in the Yankee Stadium will be witnessed for Boston Evening American readers by the greatest staff of experts ever assembled to cover an athletic event.

Nothing of importance that happens either behind or in front of the scenes will escape the attention of these trained reporters and all they see or hear will be recorded in print in tomorrow's paper.

Take a look at the American's all-star line-up!

JACK CONWAY, American boxing editor and the country's greatest picker of winners, will lead the array of stars. Jack has been legal advisor to Sharkey through his ring life, and was instrumental in dropping him in this spot.

DAMON RUNYON, who arranged the match for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund, will describe the fireworks in his own brilliant way. He is sport's greatest word painter.

NICK FLATLEY, sports editor of the Boston Evening American, will write a descriptive story of the battle as well as sidelights in his own inimitable way.

JACK SHARKEY, himself, will tell how he kept the crown in America, or why it went to Germany, as the case may be. This will be the only paper in Boston to carry the fighter's own story.

JAMES J. CORBETT, former heavyweight champion, also will give American readers an expert ringster's slant on proceedings.

There will be Hype Igoe, internationally known fight writer, and Bill Corum to depict the hundred and one intimate and technical details of a great fight like this one.

That array of fistic experts just can't be beat and assures Boston Evening American readers of the finest accounts of the battle obtainable.

The boys will give you blow-by-blow accounts of the battle and the low down on the blow or incident that settled the title.

If you miss the fight, don't miss the Boston Evening American.

No matter what happens, it's bound to be a knockout.

Sharkey, the picture of confidence and unconcern, arrived an hour before schedule to the wonderment of experienced ring observers, by a crowd of more than 2500.

The sky was still overcast and there was a threat of rain when the Boston entrant put in his appearance but the weather bureau here still insisted that there would be no showers until tomorrow.

Sharkey remains a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting. It was expected that the odds on the Irish gob would shorten at the last moment but they have [illegible] from the 5 to 2 figure which [illegible] prevailed the past [illegible].

Backers of the German champion are willing to wager Max will win by a knockout if given odds of 4 to 1. Broadway considers this price too long.

Should rain prevent the fight tonight it would be held tomorrow night and if the weather then was unfavorable it would be held on Saturday night.

James A. Farley announced today he would instruct the judges and referees who may work in tonight's bout that the contest must be judged on its merits. He said he would also inform them that his statement guaranteeing Schmeling a square deal should not be construed as meaning that the German was to get the best of things.

Farley made this statement following a protest from Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey. Buckley informed Farley that he felt the latter's statement might cause the officials to lean backwards and give Schmeling an edge.

"All Sharkey asks is a fair deal," Buckley told Farley.

"I shall have a meeting of the possible judges and referees this afternoon," said Farley. "At that time I shall tell them that Sharkey and Schmeling are to be treated alike."

With the late comers forced to purchase the rear rows of the ringside sections, the show is almost certain to sell out. The net gate is expected to run to $760,000.

"Is Jack in good condition?" Gene asked me.

"He is in the best condition of his ring career," I replied. "Has boxed some 96 rounds in training and came through the long grind without a mark or a bruise."

"If Sharkey remains the master and uses all of his boxing ability he will lick Schmeling without trouble," said the former champion. "Schmeling is not a great boxer."

In Boston alone the ticket sale hit $75,000, which is more money than was ever drawn for a boxing contest in the Hub.

HARD TEST FOR M'COY TONIGHT

Bob "Bibber" McCoy, sensational young Cambridge wrestler and the outstanding contender for Gus Sonnenberg's heavyweight title, faces his hardest bout of the year tonight when he meets Panther Joe Malcewics of Utica in the main event of Paul Bowser's all-star card at the Boston Arena.

Malcewics is one of the cleverest men wrestling today. He knows as many, if not more, tricks than those great old mat masters, Frank Gotch and Earl Caddock.

Against Malcewics's cleverness, McCoy will pit his immense strength, his great courage and a flying tackle that many think is more effective than Sonnenberg's.

Stanley Stasiak will endeavor to toss around George Ledoux in another bout, and others will bring together Harry Mamos vs. Axel Anderson and Paddy Mack vs. Frank Moran.

MOTHER THINKS MAX WILL WIN

Berlin June 11- Mama Schmeling tonight insisted, despite Jack Sharkey's favorable odds and the pessimistic attitude of the German sports writers, that her son, Maxie, would be crowned world's heavyweight champion after tonight's Milk Fund bout in the Yankee Stadium, New York city.

Ma Schmeling admitted tonight that she is so restless over the fight she is unable to sleep She declared

"Maxie will win. I believe in Maxie, and I am sure he'll beat Sharkey. But I'm prepared for anything to happen. After all, Maxie is so young, and has achieved so much in such a short space of time, that it would not be astonishing if some time he were defeated.

"But not this time. Max has done so much for the Fatherland, and he is the first German to fight for the world's championship."

Mama will listen in over the radio which she keeps in her bedroom, now. It will be almost 4 a. m. Friday in Germany when the big bout goes on Thursday night in New York. And about listening in, she ends:

"Though I shall be torn between hope and anxiety, I'll do it anyway. It won't be much pleasure, though."

What little betting there is in Berlin favors Sharkey, 5 to 3, with few takers.

Lucky Punch Schmeling's Only Hope, Says Corbett

EX-CHAMP PICKS HUB SAILOR

By JAMES J. CORBETT
Former Heavyweight Champion of the World

New York, June 12—It is difficult for me to concede more than a lucky punch chance to Max Schmeling in his battle against Jack Sharkey at New York city tonight.

I think it will be Sharkey's fight all the way.

It's an experienced warrior going into battle with a youth who has gained but little knowledge of the technique of the game; it will be a two fisted veteran taking on a one handed youth; it will be a scientific fighter, who knows all the tricks of a diversified attack and a clever defense, against a boy who can throw only a right hand and who never was schooled in how to protect himself in troublesome times.

It is class against the ambition and the daring of youth.

I reckon that class will prevail. Sharkey lacks nothing in ring greatness. Schmeling lacks much. When the German is taken apart and then reassembled it is found that all that he really has is a right and punch which is supposed to be tremendous in its power.

I say supposed because I mean just that. If the right hand of the German lad was such a superpunch, how is it that Sekyra, Monte Blake and Paulino took great numbers of them without being knocked cold?

True Schmeling stopped Blake and Monte. But he had to beat them down. There wasn't enough power in his right to knock anybody cold with one or two terrific smashes.

Experts Are Divided in Picking Victor of Go

JIMMY POWERS—Sharkey by decision.

HARRY SCHUMACHER—Sharkey by knockout after 2.56 of sixth round.

WARREN BROWN — In this heavyweight championship scramble, I like the chances of Max Schmeling, and have ever since that workmanlike job he turned in against Paulino.

PAT FRAWLEY—Youth, cool-headedness, love of fighting, and a two-handed punching attack should be served tonight in Yankee Stadium and Max Schmeling, German contender, should come out victorious over Jack Sharkey.

MARK KELLY—Picking an in-and-out performer such as Sharkey has shown himself to be may entail risk, yet I believe he will defeat Max Schmeling in five rounds by the knockout route.

FRANK McDONNELL—I think Max Schmeling's punch will overcome Jack Sharkey's boxing skill and experience, and believe the Teuton will flatten the American champion.

Brown Noses Out 1-0 Win Over Yale

B. C. NINE PLAYS PROVIDENCE

Boston College will meet Providence College at the Friar's Field in Providence this afternoon. It will be the second game between these Catholic college rivals. Providence won the first at the Heights by a score of 3-2.

Providence has proved one of the strongest nines in college circles this season and is one of the two teams to have chalked up a victory over Holy Cross.

The Friars turned the trick on the Purple in Providence, coming out on the heavy end of a 6-5 score.

Saugus Legion Nine Seeks Opposition

Saugus Post, 210, American Legion baseball team wants games for June 14 and June 15 away from home. Games for the month of July and August can be arranged by calling Ted Jaquith at Saugus 0361 between 5.30 and 6.30.

Sharkey Will Win Early in Flatley's Opinion

more than 185. A good big man can lick a good little one, almost any time—and here we have Sharkey with the old experience advantage plus plenty of weight.

Schmeling may get his right over, but one sock will not win the fight for him. He must tag the Squire two or three times on the button, and that's no soft assignment for any sharpshooter.

Sharkey took all that Loughran Scott and Stribling could fire right on that chin, and never was shaken up. He was dropped by Dempsey but that was after he had foolishly left himself open time after time, and was being slapped low once per round.

He had the Tiger out on his feet in the first round but went cuckoo, trying to show the boys how good he was. He will make no such mistakes in this rumpus. He has learned plenty by experience.

Which reminds us that Gene Tunney, whom Sharkey is inclined to sneer at, was really the impetus of Jack's last and most successful climb to the heights.

Sharkey went out to see Tunney when the champion was preparing for his second fight with Dempsey, at Chicago. Jack brought up nothing about his scrap with Dempsey.

"But Jack" said Gene in his cold and practical fashion, "you were got in shape for that fight."

Which was the truth of the matter. Sharkey reddened back of the ears, but he took the remark to heart. He never has been out of condition since that day and if he should get flattened this evening, it will be because the German packs more stuff than any past performances would indicate.

We bumped into young Mister Tunney at Madison Square Garden and the big boy looks as if he could step into the ring and go on forever. Physical condition is his gospel, and how he sticks to it. He has softened up a bit with the years since his retirement, and chats quite affably.

He laughingly refused to make any direct prediction on this fight, although it was easy to see that he thought Sharkey would have a walk over, after he was assured that Jack was ready and in shape.

"A good fighter," he remarked, "should just go in there and take command from the first bell. He should never let one of the chumps get any edge on him. Then he's out in front and can fight his own fight."

Looks to us as if the retired king was naming Sharkey as the good fighter, and Max the chump. Which is alright by us.

As things stand now, the championship of the universe, should be on its way to Newton sometime tomorrow.

Sunday Game

The Cambridge White Sox will play its second home game of the season on Sunday afternoon at Russell field, North Cambridge, opposing Joe Gilmore's All-Stars.

Higgins With A.'s

Frank Higgins, captain and second baseman of the University of Texas baseball team, has signed to play with the Philadelphia Athletics.

LOUGHRAN IS BEATEN BY SCHAAF

Philadelphia, June 12 (US)—Ernie Schaaf, rugged Boston heavyweight, hammered and slapped but could not K. O. Tommy Loughran here last night in 10 rounds before 20,000 spectators in the sequi-centennial stadium.

Schaaf, with an opening attack that caught Tommy off guard, socked the former light heavyweight champion a vicious left hook that sent him to the floor, but only for a count of three.

Thereafter the Boston heavyweight fought viciously for a knockout triumph but the crafty, wily and courageous Philadelphia veteran weathered the most torrid storm Schaaf threw his way and came back with several sensational rallies that brought the fans up cheering.

But Schaaf was not to be denied. He pumped that right hand everlastingly into Tommy's body in the early rounds and then when Tommy seemed to be weakening Ernie shifted his assault to the head and at the finish Tommy's face was a gory sight.

Malden Will Play St. John's Tonight

Raquel Accepts Position as Paris Model and Is Warned by 'Madame'

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojas, half-Spanish, half-American and wholly in revolt against her home life at Hermosa, on the Mexican border, accepts a loan from the man she loves, Jack Farrell, a young engineer, and flees to New York. There she stops at the Hotel Bretton and wants for Farrell to come to marry her. One day she is attracted by a hat in a shop window. The owner of the shop is the famous Alphonse Courbet. He sees Raquel and recognizes in her the type of model he wants for Paris. He offers her the chance to go abroad with him as one of his models. Raquel is to give an answer at dinner the following evening.

CHAPTER 11

The offer of Alphonse Courbet, entrepreneur of beauty, to engage Raquel Rojas as a model was not as fortuitous as on the surface appears.

A connoisseur of women, Alphonse. Especially of beautiful women. Of all beauty, for the matter of that. His house, a veritable reproduction of a French chateau, atop a New York roof overlooking the majestic sweep of the Hudson river and the Palisades, was a citadel of beauty.

Those who had tasted of the hospitality of Alphonse's apartment in Paris could testify to its lavishness to its setting in a treasure-trove reclaimed from the ruins of the exquisite Louis XV period. Alphonse, a connoisseur of face by reason of his flair for beauty and his infallible understanding of that which is true art.

Raquel Accepts
As Model in Paris

A radiant Raquel awaited him when he came that evening to take her to dinner. Alphonse, in her dark young eyes, that Alphonse forgot the offense cheap ill-fitting clothes always gave him.

"The already decided, Monsieur Alphonse," Raquel told him almost before he could bend to kiss her hand in his foreign way. "I go to Paris as a model, if you think I'll do."

"That is indeed wise, Mademoiselle Raquel" he said gravely. "There is no city in the world like Paris for a young woman."

Then, dined inconspicuously in a restaurant of quiet elegance, music, conversation, lights and exquisite food.

"Good night, Mademoiselle." Alphonse said when he left her at her hotel shortly before 10. "You will report at the shop in the morning for instructions. It must be that you study hard. The time is short. A week, two weeks perhaps, three at the most."

"Good night," murmured Raquel. She wished he would not go—just yet.

What if Jack Farrell should be waiting for her in the hotel? What if he should come in the next hour before she could go out and meet Alphonse's limousine in the morning?

Reception, the third time secretary of her hotel, was Jack Farrell no longer, perhaps, but not yet.

Promptly at 9 in the morning she was at the shop. Alphonse, the handsome young salesman and her never came down before 11. Raquel explained to her why she was there. The tawny one eyed her narrowly.

"Model for Paris, eh?" she said, making no attempt to conceal her envy. "You're in luck." Then, with a swift glance around them to make sure they were alone. "I'm going to be a real friend and warn you. Let off Alphonse, if Madame Pauline so much as suspects you've got designs on him—well—I wouldn't want to be in your shoes, that's all."

Pauline, shoulders lifted.

"Thanks," she said. "I have no—what you call designs—on Monsieur Alphonse. I work for him. Nothing more. As for this Madame Pauline, I do not know who she is. But I do not fear her. It would be absurd for her, that she issue me alone."

Raquel's smile had menace in it.

"Ah?" gasped the tawny one, "you're a cool one."

Then settled herself in a more comfortable attitude and would tell her all she knew about Alphonse.

If she were to Paris, confessing to such she confessed, it would be a question of one week. Let Hermosa say what it would, he would come to Paris for her. Alphonse never failed a model, never permitted her to go back to Hermosa, or to stay and would not let her go.

Who Is She?
Madame Appears, Too

There was that look he made to her too. She could not pass it back. Not until she earned enough money for the return fare. Not until she could be sure of earning enough to keep herself in comfort. Not until she could be sure of earning enough to keep herself in comfort.

"It is the new model?"

"Yes, I am the new model," Raquel refused to wither under the other's scorn.

"You need not wait for Monsieur Alphonse. I do not like your type. It is stark, offensive to one's delicacy. For the stage perhaps. But here, we must have finesse."

"I take orders from Monsieur Alphonse," said Raquel.

The woman's eyes, the ample breast glared.

"You take orders from me," she said. "I will not have you here—understand? Monsieur Alphonse has changed his mind. He cannot use you."

Raquel rose. It would be well to be on guard against a vengeful woman with the mottled cheek.

"When Monsieur Alphonse tells me, I go," she said quietly. "Until then, I wait."

"You wait, that"" cried the woman, looking wildly about the shop for confirmation of what her ears told her could not be true. "She defies me, this hussy! She flaunts me! Get out, I tell you! I'll teach you and your Alphonse!"

Her fingers with the long pointed nails dug into Raquel's shoulder.

"Stop!" Another voice cut the air. Stern, uncompromising. "You shall pay for this, madame. Dearly you shall pay. Brawling in the shop of Alphonse, like a common creature of the street. Canaille."

The woman's hand dropped. She drew back. The mottles on her cheeks were livid purplish splotches.

Heart and Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Be a "Vamp"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I wonder if you can help me in this predicament? I think that I like two boys, but am very much in love with me. But it seems that I can't tell whether it is love or not. I feel that I am cheating when I go out with one and think of the other. Should I confess to go with them both? Can you advise me? UNDECIDED

Dear Undecided: If you will wish to get a reputation as a "flirt" or a "vamp," you should not continue to encourage the affections of young men. Make up your mind which of the two you prefer, and if you can do that, it would be best to explain that you do not love either of them enough to consider them as your future prospects. Only the very simplest gifts at birthdays or other anniversaries should be accepted from young men.

Get Other Friends

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What do you think of a fellow that proposes to a girl through a letter, as he is traveling in New York and she is a Boston girl and four months later, he tells her that he has to support his mother and has lost his job, and therefore she should go out with other fellows until he can make good. I happen to be that unfortunate girl.

He is a very ambitious young man, but somehow or other can't get a lucky break at jobs. He has had a hundred and one jobs since I know him. Would you advise me to go out with other fellows and wait for him (also he wants to see me once in a while), or should I forget all about him?

SALLY B.

Dear Sally B: Your young friend is evidently unsettled in his mind. If he can't hold a job, married life wouldn't be very happy, would it? Why not do as he says and cultivate other friends? He will have to work out his own future, and it is better for him to do it alone.

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer all love problems sent in by readers.

When Bride Weds Simple Lace Is Chic

By ANN ARDEN

Ann Arden broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.

MORE AND MORE clever young things are eschewing the elaborate wedding ceremony. The simpler and less formal kind. Perhaps it's due to the fact that so many of our society brides-to-be insist on living their careers up to the moment that they walk to the altar and thus have little time for elaborate preparations. Or perhaps it is an outgrowth of the brisk attitude toward all semi-modern affairs which we have come to expect of these young moderns.

WHATEVER the cause may be fashion has more than risen to the occasion and made the informal bridal as lovely a thing as the formal one. Was ever a prospective bride offered a greater wealth of the informal, formal type of clothes than in this summer of grace 1930? She may choose the picturesque, the naive the quaint or the sophisticated according to her mood—for the after noon mode from which the informal wedding dress inspiration abounds in all of these types.

LACE is a graceful and fashionable gesture whatever its formality may be. This summer it comes in delicate colorings that seem utterly bride like. Pale blues soft pinks and greens not to overlook the informal flattering range of the peach. Chiffon, printed or plain, flat crepe and the newly revived net are notions such as organdie are a never pass between for the informal bride. For the all-important, the wedding gown will, of course, follow current fashion decrees the skirt will probably be ankle or full length and the waistline will be high. We have chosen for our bride one in a charming frock that will fit into a summer garden setting with as much grace as it will sway down the aisle of the little chapel.

FASHIONED of chiffon and thread lace in powder blue, the costume pictured would be appropriate and designed for an informal wedding. Note the long jacket, the sleeveless V-necked frock is an attractive opening gown. Swirling inserts of lace form the skirt of uneven hemline while the style includes a bit of lace and chiffon peplum and wide inserts in the sleeves. The ensemble is in the lovely shade also known as linen blue.

BRIDES usually wear the jewelry given them by the groom; however, a few discreet pieces may be worn besides if the bride so chooses. For instance the delicate pearl bracelet would be in the best of taste for a slender wrist.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashion generally. Address your questions to the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH

About Frozen Salads and Cocktails

"I often wonder how folks get along without plenty of ice to make salads and frozen desserts," declared one of my friends the business girl as we were lunching in her favorite restaurant where the room and the crowded even on the hottest day. The old folks don't mind the one hot with their talk about the good old days, because I'm just old enough to remember my grandmother and her good old ways, and time as it is gives me no illusions and elegance for the new. Grandpa was a dear old soul and she's been gone many years but I shall always remember her as she used to sweep a broom or with her face glowing and hot over the great range. Sir certainly would feel out of place in today's apartment.

But what I want to tell you about are a few frozen salads and cocktails that have been an inspiration to me lately.

FROZEN PEACH COCKTAIL

Drain 2½ cups of sliced peaches and cut very fine. Mash to a pulp. Add one cup white grape juice and stir in smooth. Add peaches, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon orange juice, syrup and two tablespoons seedless grapes that come in cans. Mean while soften one teaspoon of gelatin in four teaspoons of cold water, and dissolve in the boiling pot peach juice and syrup. Cool and add to fruit juice mixture. Serve in glass cups and cups. Be sure not to freeze until the next day for use as a little later in the season, canned raspberries and peaches and ambrosia of summer time and good for dinner or

FROZEN SUGAR SALAD

Combine 1¼ cups of crushed pineapple ½ cup of apple sauce, four tablespoons of maple flavored syrup and 1-3 cup chopped nuts. Soften one teaspoon gelatin in one tablespoon of cold water. Dissolve in two tablespoons boiling water and add. Beat ½ cup of cream add ½ cup mayonnaise a few grains of salt and fold into the fruit. Pour into individual round or star-shaped ice cream molds and cover with waxed paper and the top covers. Pack in ice and salt until frozen. When ready to serve, turn out into lettuce cups of lettuce. Have very ripe, firm watermelon cut in small wedges and marinated in French dressing. Arrange five of these around each mold, like the rays of a star. The melon should be ice cold.

How about sending the Business Girl some of YOUR helpful hints? All those all letters to Martha Lee care of Boston Evening American, 8 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Women's Exchange

Here's a suggestion for Mrs. G. A. F., who asks about how to remove stiffness from the soles of the feet. Soak your feet at least 10 minutes every day in warm water to which has been added a small amount of epsom salts. Dry them thoroughly and paste a piece of adhesive plaster over the callous. Remove this each time you soak your feet. This will soften the callous and every few days some of it can be rubbed off or shaved off with a safety razor.

MRS. M. HIRTH of 143 Park st., Nor. Reading suggests a little change in waffles that may prove interesting. Mix 1 cup of milk with 1 cup of cold boiled rice. Add 3 eggs, 2 tbsps. of melted butter, 2 tsps. of baking powder, 2 well beaten eggs, 1 pt. of milk and enough flour to make a thin batter. Bake in a hot, well greased waffle iron.

Mrs. Beeckman Advises

By MRS. BEECKMAN

A Breach of Etiquette

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am rather puzzled with sending a wedding present. We are newcomers in this city and my husband always receives an invitation to his assistant's wedding. Although I'm a not met either party concerned, I consider this a decided breach in etiquette. I wish to know whether I should send it, and if I should not send the wedding gift including my name? MRS. J. H.

You are right, and this was a very decided breach of etiquette. Always send a present when either your husband's assistant or his bride-to-be, the wedding invitation should have been sent in both your names and your name. This is one of the fundamental rules of etiquette.

If you are planning to send a wedding present it should be sent a week before the wedding and not with the visiting cards, or a "Mr. and Mrs." card, if you have one. And the present, of course, should be addressed only to the bride-to-be at her home.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

How to Keep Well

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Early Training of Children

We are just beginning to realize the full importance of early training. Education must begin at birth and be most intensive during the first five or six years of a child's life. Most parents feel that a great responsibility rests upon them during these first years and they are right. The child's life. This causes them to deal with the problem in a whole-hearted and intelligent manner.

The parents must see that a child is properly fed and clothed and housed. He must be trained to the right habits of living. It is the period of character formation, and the spiritual values must not be overlooked.

The mind of a new-born baby is like an unexposed film. Beginning with the very first days of a child's life, the mind records impressions received through the five senses. During these formative years parents have a wonderful chance to provide the right impressions in a way in the period to plan correct habits of living.

This early home training will have a lasting result in the child's mental and emotional life. It will stand him in good stead through all the trials and storms of later life.

Child psychology has taught us many things. The understanding of a child his mental development, his moral and spiritual training, his behavior, his health—they are all matters for better understood today than they ever were before.

Your baby's health is of paramount importance. Methods of bringing up babies have improved in the past generation. The child who does not have well should receive individual care and training. No hard and fast rules can be laid down for any individual.

Every mother should give her child the benefit of the wider knowledge which care now is more accessible now as never before. Mothers of children who need special attention now have the advice of trained workers—physicians, the visiting nurse.

Living conditions in every community are improving slowly but surely. Everyone must help in making the world better. The water supply, milk supply, housing conditions, cleanliness of the streets and atmosphere, playgrounds park systems, industrial conditions hospital facilities, wages of the bread winners, availability of medical and nursing care—all of these must be made safe and sure. They must be looked after for the sake of the children and of the community.

Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy
What to Do in a Sandstorm—and Why

By UNCLE TODDY

ON THE RAD O AT 5:30 EVERY AFTERNOON

Copyright, 1930 by Paul Wing

Lorraine and David and Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy and Alfred, the rabbit, were all snuggled down between the front legs of Ebenezer, the camel and his four wives, Patience, Prudence, Constance and Mehitabel.

They were out in the middle of the great desert. And a terrible sand storm was going on.

It was going on in a very frightful way.

The wind was blowing so hard that it was growling and howling and screeching.

It was so full of sand that they couldn't even see. In fact they didn't even dare to look, for fear of getting sand in their eyes.

"Are you all right?" cried Tom Toddy to the others. The wind blew so hard that Tom had to shout very loud in order to make himself heard.

And when he opened his mouth to shout the sand blew in so that he had to sputter and spit to get it out. And even then he couldn't get all of the sand out.

"Are you all right?" he shouted.

"No! I'm all wrong!" shouted Alfred, "the sand keeps getting in my ears! And I can't shake my head fast enough to keep it out. It's in my nose, too. And when I wiggle my nose it scratches. And I don't like it! I want it stopped!

"So do the rest of us!" cried Tom. "But who's going to stop it?"

"Ebenezer ought to stop it!" Alfred replied, "He says it's his desert."

"Yes," said Ebenezer, "it's my desert, but it's not my wind. I can't do anything about it!"

"There," he continued, "Now see what you've done! You've made me talk and I've got sand in my mouth! If it hadn't been for you I never would have got sand in my mouth because we camels have too much sense to try to talk during a sand storm."

"If you would just keep still, Alfred," said Lorraine, "the sand wouldn't get in your mou—

"Oh, my! Now it's in my mouth, too!" she cried.

"Well," said Ebenezer, "you'll just have to spit it out and make the best of it."

"That's just the trouble!" Alfred whined. "When I try to make the best of it—it makes the worst of me!"

"Oh fish-hooks!" exclaimed Ebenezer, "Don't complain so much! After all it's nothing but a sandstorm. If you'll just snuggle your faces deep into the thick fur on our backs it won't bother you at all. You won't get into your ears or your eyes or your nose or your mouth, either.

So Lorraine and David and Tom and Tillie and Alfred all snuggled their faces deep into the camel's thick, soft hair. And, sure enough! the sand didn't even touch their faces.

It was fine. They couldn't possibly have been more comfortable. It was exactly the kind of hair it was soft as the little brush that came with your paint box. In fact, that is exactly the kind of hair it was.

And it was warm and nice. And Tillie and David felt super silly nice because they hadn't tried to say anything, so they didn't have any sand in their mouths.

The wind growled and howled and screamed and screeched. The sand hurried and scuttled and blew and flew in every direction.

Until, finally, it just seemed as if the sand and the wind got tired. They began to blow not quite so hard. You could hardly notice at first how hard they were not quite blowing so.

But before long the sand stopped flying altogether. And soon the wind died down to nothing. Or even less. And the sun, which had been hid, den behind the clouds of blowing sand, came out and shone brightly again.

Alfred came out from between Mehitabel's front legs and shook himself to get the sand out of his ears. And he sneezed the sand out of his nose so that he could wiggle it again, without scratching.

Ebenezer and Patience and Prudence and Constance and Mehitabel got up and shook themselves to get the sand out of their hair.

Then they lay down again and put their chins on the sand so that Tom and Tillie and Lorraine and David and Alfred could climb up on their backs again.

And at that they started off once more, across the desert. They were having a fine ride.

"Doesn't it seem funny," said David, to have the sun shining so brightly such a little while after that awful storm?"

"Why," he said, "it's so pleasant now that I can hardly believe there was a storm! Can you?"

"No," said Tillie, "it seems as if it must have been pleasant, like this, always!"

So they looked.

"It wouldn't seem like that to you if you had all the sand that's down my back, down yours!" Tom explained.

"Or the sand that's in my mouth" cried Lorraine.

"Or in my ears!" said Alfred.

At this Tillie and David laughed.

"Well," said Tillie, "Why didn't you keep still as David and I did?"

"No," said David, "then you wouldn't have sand down your backs or in your mouths or in your ears."

"You ought to be glad they did talk," Ebenezer said to Tillie and David, "because if they hadn't talked, you probably would have."

"That just goes to show," said Tom, "that it's no profit by other people's experience."

Lorraine laughed. "You're always saying that," she said to Tom.

"Saying what?" Tom asked.

"Why," she said, "you're always saying, 'that just goes to show'"

"Well, it does, doesn't it?" said Tom, "everything just goes to show something."

"No," said Lorraine, "because our mother has a picture that has two of all of its 'look-back-at-you' stuff. And if you looked in it, it wouldn't go to show you something."

"Yes it would!" said Tom.

"What would it go to show you?" asked Lorraine.

"Why," said Tom, triumphantly, "And that's something. Because if 'nothing' weren't 'something,' it wouldn't be anything. But it is something. It's 'nothing!'" he said, "that is very silly talk!" declared Alfred, "And I wish you'd stop it because it doesn't put any sugar in the Fudge!"

"And besides," he said, "we are almost across the desert. Look!"

"Oh, look!" cried Tillie, "There is the ocean!"

"Why! So It is!" agreed Tom.

"How shall we ever get across?"

David wanted to know.

"Yes!" cried Lorraine, "I wish the one-legged ginger-bread man was here with his little boat! How shall we get across?"

"Oh, we don't have to cross the ocean," said Tom. "We just walk along the beach—all the way to Toddy Town. It's not much further now."

"Here we are!" cried Ebenezer camel, stopping on the sandy beach, right near the water. "We'll have to put you down now. This is as far as we can go."

And he and his wives knelt down so that Tom could slide off Ebenezer and Lorraine could slide off Prudence and Tillie could slide off Patience and David could slide off Constance and Alfred could slide off Mehitabel.

"Thank you very much," said Tom to Ebenezer, "for how we could have got along without you especially during the sand storm."

"Thank you!" cried David and Tillie and Tom, "It's been ever so nice of you."

"Oh, that's all right," said Ebenezer, "We've enjoyed it. It's been a pleasure! Hasn't it, girls?" and he turned to Patience and Constance and Prudence and Mehitabel.

They all made the same funny noise they had made before—like the noise you've heard camels make.

And Ebenezer said, "They mean 'yes,'" So I suppose that is what they mean, as they aren't here to understand a word they said.

Then Ebenezer and his wives turned and started off across the beach, back to the desert. Soon all you could see of them was five tiny specks—way off in the distance. And, at last, they disappeared entirely.

As the children started walking along the beach beside the ocean, Lorraine said gaily:

"I liked Ebenezer and his wives. I'm going to miss them. I wish they hadn't gone so far away."

"So do I" said David. "Do you suppose we'll ever see them again?"

"Oh, I expect so," answered Tillie. "You can never tell when you'll run into some one you've known before, or where!"

"That's right," said Tom. "That only goes to show it's a small world after all."

"Ever since you made me so small," said Alfred, "it's looked like an awfully big world to me!"

But Tillie interrupted him.

"Oh, look!" she cried, "There's a great big pier sticking right out into the ocean."

"All right!" shouted the others. "Let's do!"

And next week I'll tell you what they said. And what the fisherman said. And something else that is very exciting. Because—don't forget—they are getting very close to Toddy Town now.

And there you and I will have to leave them until next Thursday at half past five on the radio, at Station WEEI. Be sure to listen in on that radio and make a note of it on your calendar, right now.

Now, I hope that you are all drinking a foamy, creamy glass of Toddy made with nice fresh cold milk, at least once every day. For I don't know of anything that is so cooling and delightful to drink. And I don't know of anything else that is half so good for boys and girls as Toddy is. It helps to make you strong and healthy so that you can play hard and swim well and grow up to be sturdy men and women.

And, oh yes!—If you want the Toddy Story Book, with all the Toddy stories in it—and colored pictures, too, just write to Uncle Toddy, 250 Park Avenue, New York City, and I will send it to you right away.

MOTHERS:

This is the time of year when Toddy, the delicious malt chocolate food-drink, merits your greatest consideration. Children play hardest and longer. Help them to avoid summer time exhaustion by regular servings of Toddy made with milk. It is easily assimilated and takes the place of over-heating foods.

Toddy contains an exchange of healthful barley malt extract which aids digestion and its flavor wins the young palate to its rich properties. Toddy costs a few cents more—but wise mothers who will not economize on their children's health conceds that Toddy is worth it.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER TAKING NEW DROPS

New York, June 12—The stock market was setting new highs for the day as it entered the last period in Wall St. today.

Before it exhibited very much rallying power the market was cracked off to lower levels by another severe selling wave, which was at its worst just around noon.

"Blue chip" leaders showed new losses of a point to 10 or more points as the over-night selling orders piled into the market. Liquidation on a fairly large scale, some of it of the forced variety, combined with bear selling to force prices sharply lower.

Westinghouse was again under fire, off 6. General Electric dropped to the lowest price on the move. U. S. Steel was off over 2, Vanadium 4 and Radio Corp 2.

Then the rally set in and substantial rebounds were recorded.

Announcement that the German loan was oversubscribed and commanded a 1 per cent premium in the open market was favorably construed by the bulls.

A wide assortment of prominent issues reached new low levels for the year, including American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio Chesapeake and Ohio, Chrysler, International Telephone, and Lambert. Bethlehem Steel sagged to a new minimum, then rebounded.

Such issues as Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, American Tobacco B, Worthington Pump, Westinghouse Electric, International Harvester, American Can, and Air Reduction dropped $5 to $10 a share before the midday rally.

J. I. Case dropped more than $14. Losses of about $2 in U. S. Steel and General Electric were soon recovered.

Reduction of the price of copper from 18 to 12¾ cents a pound, after its recent rebound from 12 to 13 cents was an unsettling factor.

Renewed weakness in copper metal, which sank ¼ of 1 cent to 12¾ cents a pound on publication of the June 1 statistics, showing a moderate increase in stocks, again served to turn the spotlight on the somewhat steadier, but still none too steady commodity price structure.

Renewed heaviness of wheat did not help the early stock market. While, with the recent decline in sterling banking quarters had not looked for a further reduction in the Bank of England's rate this week, the fact that the rate was unchanged caused some disappointment in speculative circles.

Money was so plentiful that the 3 per cent call loan rate on the Stock Exchange was cut to 2½ per cent for the first time since March 20. Money was available outside at 2 per cent.

It appeared that Wall St. might experience another flood of credit as it did during the treasury financing of March. With market sentiment radically changed, however, its effects, normally tonic, are problematical.

The market turned dull on the rally and the ticker, which had been 21 minutes in arrears, caught up with the trading.

The evidence of strong buying and the apparent completion of forced selling caused extensive short covering in the afternoon lifting pivotal shares industrials beyond Wednesday's closing prices. Allied Chemical, Worthington Pump, New York Central, and Johns-Manville sold 2 to 4 net higher and American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Public Service of New Jersey and A. M. Byers a point or more.

J. I. Case rallied 15 points from its low level and Auburn Auto 14. The close was firm.

SUSPENDED BY N. Y. EXCHANGE

New York, June 12—Alexander B. Johnson of Throckmorton & Co. has been suspended for one year by the New York Stock Exchange.

Statement of the Stock Exchange says:

"The substance of the charge and specification was that between November, 1929, and April, 1930, the firm of Throckmorton & Co., which had previously organized a fixed investment trust under which the Chatham Phenix Bank & Trust Co. was trustee had certain transactions with said trustee in which the firm of Throckmorton & Co. realized secret profits. These profits were made by the connivance of two of the partners of Throckmorton & Co., with an employee of the trustee. These two partners received information in advance as to the amount of rights or of a stock dividend which the trustee was to sell under the terms of the trust indenture.

"They thereupon sold for the account of Throckmorton & Co. the equivalent amount of rights for stock and thereafter purchased from the trustee the amount which it had to sell at prices which were lower than the prices that the firm itself had realized.

"The two partners concerned in these transactions have since resigned, full restitution has been made, and it appeared none of the remaining partners of Throckmorton & Co. had any personal knowledge of these practices.

"Said Alexander B. Johnson, having been found guilty by the governing committee of said charge and specification, was suspended for one year."

ICE INDUSTRY STAGES BIG RECOVERY

By FRANK H. MELOON

American Ice Co., of which the Boston Ice Co. is a subsidiary, was favored by May weather and handled record tonnage for the month. Net profits for May are expected to show an increase of around 10 per cent. Price cutting had been noted in some communities earlier in the year, but was not passed on to the consumer and has been abandoned.

The May comeback for the big ice company, of which the president is Charles C. Small, a son of Maine, shows that freezing machines competition has not done away with the iceman. The fact is that many ice companies have made considerable money by selling the freezing machines to customers. Besides which there has been a general growth in demand for ice. More than 95 per cent of that sold in Boston is artificially frozen by the ice companies themselves.

Previously we have pointed out numerous benefits expected to be derived by New England from the current Tercentenary celebration. Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell, president of Eastern Steamship, the world's largest coastwise transportation fleet, adds to the list by pointing out increased travel over the company's lines. Not only New England but also Nova Scotia and New Brunswick will reap profits from larger numbers of summer tourists attracted by the celebration. Capt. O'Donnell reports heavy advance reservations made for coastwise travel.

In the old days a much larger proportion of New England travel was by water than is the case today. Only a century ago regular daily sailings, for example, were possible between Boston and Portsmouth, N. H. Now there is no such sailing, although Portsmouth and nearby Eliot, Me., are the places where annual stockholders' meetings of large steamship lines are held. The days of steamship excursions from Boston to the Isle of Shoals, in Maine and New Hampshire, were more recent, but also have passed.

To reach the famous Isles of Shoals you must now take a steamer out of Portsmouth, N. H. The isles hold considerable historic interest for Tercentenary visitors. They boast one big summer hotel, fires have destroyed two others. The Isles of Shoals lie within easy vision of the Rye and Hampton Beaches, where are located the summer homes of ex-Gov. Fuller and a notable collection of automobile and industrial leaders.

PLANS TO BUY UTILITIES

Chicago, June 12—Negotiations for the acquisition of additional substantial foreign public utility interests by Public Utility Holding Corporation were admitted officially yesterday, and following the arrival of the company officers in New York this week an important statement may be expected.

The entrance of Public Utility Holding Corporation ($75,000,000 bankers' holding company formed by Harris, Forbes & Company and American Founders' Corporation) into foreign fields is in line with the policy previously announced and partly carried out through acquisition of the South American Railway Company.

BOSTON STOCKS STAGE SPOTTY RECOVERIES

Prices sagged to new low levels in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Several issues were quoted at their lowest prices for the year. Among these were American Telephone, Credit Alliance, Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway preferred and adjustment stocks, Nash and New River preferred.

Gillette rebounded, after touching a new low at 77⅛. Quincy Mining was sold around Wednesday's closing level. Edison dropped 4 points. American Founders was sold at its previous low mark. Cities Service held steady.

Torrington was an exception to the downward trend, gaining 3 points. United Fruit was up over a point. Point or more losses were shown by Bigelow Sanford, Boston Elevated first preferred, Railway Light & Security, Reece Button Hole and Boston & Albany.

Prices staged a spotty recovery in the last hour.

Dividends of 20 per cent of each yearly premium were declared on all policies expiring in August by directors of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. at their regular June meeting in Boston. The company has had a continuous profit-earning record of slightly better than 25 per cent since organization in 1912, resulting largely from lower sales costs and careful selection of business, which saves large losses.

Directors of the Liberty Mutual were particularly pleased with the announcement that the Company's sales volume for the first five months of the year was 15 per cent ahead of the same period in 1929 when all existing records were broken.

Total cash dividends of over $27,000,000 have been earned and returned to policyholders since organization, in addition to the building up of a substantial surplus, the setting aside of a large contingent fund to provide for possible security fluctuations, and a reserve for losses $1,000,000 in excess of the legal requirements.

Liberty Mutual is the leading mutual writer of workmen's compensation, general liability and automobile insurance and has jumped to fourth place from sixth in compensation insurance sales for the entire country.

Extra Payment on Rail Is Ordered

New York, June 12—The Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville R. R. declared extra dividend of $1 on the common and regular semiannual dividend of $2.50 on the common and $2 on the preferred, all payable July 10 to stock of record June 24. This is the usual extra dividend.

Transamerica to Buy Oregon Bank

New York, June 12—Directors of Transamerica Corporation authorized conclusion of negotiations for purchase of First National Bank of Portland, Ore.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

OUTLOOK UNCERTAIN

D. C., Boston—What is the outlook for American Sumatra Tobacco?

Ans.—The outlook for American Sumatra Tobacco is uncertain. Quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share due April 15, 1930, was omitted. The last payment was January 15, 1930. For year ended July 31, 1929, net profits were 68 cents a share compared with $2.93 for 1928. The stock is a sheer speculation.

MORE FOR STOCKS

J. W., Boston—I own nine shares Ingersoll-Rand and shall appreciate advice on the investment of an additional $6000 in stocks.

Ans.—For a bit more than $4000 you can get 10 shares each American Water Works & Electric first preferred, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific 7 per cent preferred, Standard Gas & Electric $6 preferred and 15 Kansas City Southern preferred. The annual income of $250 is 6 per cent. Hold Ingersoll-Rand. The company, a large manufacturer of air compressors and pneumatic tools, has paid dividends, with extras, from 1910; latest extra $1 a share June 2.

MUST DECIDE

S. F., Newton—I own 30 shares Congress Cigar at higher levels. Shall I hold or sell?

Ans.—You must use your own judgment. However, facts may help you. In May, 1930, the annual dividend rate on Congress Cigar was reduced to $4 a share, compared with $5 rate maintained since since December, 1928. Dividends of $3 a share annually were paid from July, 1926, to January, 1927, then increased to $4. In the first quarter of current year, earnings were 76 cents a share, compared with $1.32 for similar period in 1929. Full year's net for 1929 was $3.23 a share, contrasted with $8.53 in 1928 and $7.87 in 1927. After June 16, it is thought likely Porto Rican American Tobacco, which now has a 65 per cent interest in Congress Cigar, may make an offer of exchange to the minority stockholders. The stock is speculative.

Fidelity Trust to Change Its Name

Buffalo, N. Y., June 12—The Fidelity Trust Co. of New York, a member of the Marine Midland group, will change its name on or about July 1 to Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York and increase its capital to $10,000,000 from $6,000,000 and its surplus to $10,000,000 from $4,000,000, President Band of Marine Midland Corp. states.

Acquisition of Fidelity Trust by Marine Midland Corp. became effective April 15 with deposit of 98 per cent of stock of Fidelity Trust under the agreement.

Fidelity Trust Co. thus takes the name which identifies it with the largest banking group in the state, Marine Midland Corp., controlling 18 banks with resources over $600,000,000. Increase in capital and surplus will make the new Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York a larger and more influential member of the group, controlled by Marine Midland, which now has more than 20,000 stockholders.

Sidelights of Market

President Kulas stated that in first four months Midland Steel Products earned common dividends for the period 2.67 times before federal taxes and profit sharing deductions.

State Street hears the discussions toward consolidation of several New England cotton mills into largest organization of its kind in the East have been indefinitely postponed. It is understood that Bancamerica-Blair Corp., prospective bankers of the project, feel that conditions in the industry are too poor to permit such a step at this time. Boards of directors of all concerns involved have ratified the proposal, and plan will probably be submitted to stockholders at a more favorable time.

Beginning July 1 Wamsutta Mills, oldest and one of the largest mills at New Bedford, will sell direct to the trade. Ridley Watts & Co., which has handled Wamsutta products as selling agent, will dissolve as of that date.

Standard Oil of New Jersey has become one of the best trading mediums in the market, if the attitude of important traders can be taken as a criterion. This element has been showing more interest in the stock in recent weeks. Conservative commission houses, however, have been advising customers that the most satisfactory results should be obtained by the long-pull buyers, and have therefore been recommending purchases on reactions.

Directors of the Berliner Joyce Aircraft Corp. have approved an offer from North American Aviation, Inc., to acquire the Joyce Corp.

Bids will be received June 16 for the contract to build a fire station on Boylston st and Reservoir rd., Brookline, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., Construction Reports. Brick, granite and limestone, first class construction, two stories and basement 75x55. Architect Strickland, Blodgett & Law of Boston.

Contract has been awarded to Richard F. Gleason of Roslindale, to build a factory building on Moore and Washington sts., Cambridge, for Macalaster Bicknell Co., according to Brown's Letters, Inc., Construction Reports.

Chicago houses have been credited with buying Montgomery Ward at various times in the past 10 days or two weeks. The demand is credited to interests that believe that with the change in management of the chain-store division of the company those units rapidly are becoming prospects for large potential earnings.

Since the expansion was launched by Borden in 1927, there has been a substantial increase in sales, which amounted to $328,000,000 last year. In the period from 1927 to 1929 there was an increase of 190 per cent in net profits. That would indicate that the management was careful in its acquisitions and was successful in meeting the difficulties of co-ordinating the new units.

When other utilities were being attacked it was only natural that Consolidated Gas should be affected. However, interests that have been prominent in that stock on several occasions in the past contend that the issue is close to a buying range again, and that the stock will resume leadership in the utilities when the market again becomes settled or rallies sharply.

Officials of Western Union have obtained their usual firm grip on expenses, and as a result earnings for the second quarter will be much better than those for the first three months of the year. For the half-year the dividend requirements of $4 a share probably will be earned with more than $1 to spare. At present levels of approximately 100 points under the top, the issue is being accumulated during favorable periods for investment purposes.

Copper for domestic shipment was quoted by several custom smelters today at 12¾ cents, a decrease of ¼ of a cent from the previous quotation of 13 cents. Domestic copper in the recent decline touched 12 cents and subsequently rallied to 13, after having been reduced from 18 cents a pound.

Motor vehicle factories last year paid $750,000,000 in wages, not including automobile accessory companies, tire companies, etc. However, motor industry wage payments probably still are second to the steel industry. U. S. Steel alone, which represents less than 40 per cent of the steel industry, paid $420,000,000 in wages last year.

ATLANTIC BANK FAST GROWER

Consolidation of Beacon Trust Co., with deposits aggregating $32,500,000, and Atlantic National Bank, whose deposits are in the vicinity of $111,000,000, will narrow the gap between the second and third largest banks in Boston and by the same token widen the gap between the third and fourth largest. When the merger is completed Atlantic will have deposits approaching $144,000,000, capital of $9,875,000 and surplus and undivided profits well in excess of $10,000,000.

At the end of 1920 deposits of the predecessor Fourth Atlantic National Bank amounted to $26,500,000. In the slightly more than nine years since then deposits have climbed steadily to a prospective $140,000,000 plus. In the interim the Commonwealth Trust Co., Boylston National, Massachusetts Trust and Commercial Security National have joined with the Atlantic, and now comes the Beacon Trust into the fold. Capital has increased from $2,000,000 in 1920 to the proposed total of $9,875,000. At the same time surplus and undivided profits will have mounted to above $10,000,000 from $3,250,000.

Atlantic now has nine branches in addition to its main office. With the Beacon Trust main office and its two branches merged with the Atlantic, the latter will have 12 branches.

FORBES GIVES VIEWS ON RAIL MERGERS

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 12—Railway consolidations will continue steadily, but somewhat slowly.

Senator Couzens' bill to forbid the sanctioning of railway mergers by the Interstate Commerce Commission will not become a law, at least in the measurably near future.

B. C. Forbes

The Missouri Pacific merger plan is the first likely to be carried out.

The next to be taken up is the Baltimore & Ohio's plan to take over the Reading & Jersey Central.

These statements are based on a talk with F. J. Lisman, investment banker, who is regarded in financial circles as among the best-poised men in America on railways, railway prospects, railway mergers and the like.

When I asked Mr. Lisman to box the railway compass, so to speak, he replied, in effect:

The Interstate Commerce Commission asked Congress to amend the law which made it mandatory to bring out a consolidation plan for all the railroads in the United States, but Congress did not act. Therefore, the commission last December brought out its plan.

Meanwhile the commission has granted the request for merging the Great Northern Pacific, with certain provisos, notably that these roads surrender control of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy System. The dominating interests in the two roads have not yet reached a definite decision as to acceptance.

Senator Couzen's proposal appealed to the labor railroad unions. They claim that the economics promised through mergers would be largely at the expense of labor.

But at the hearing before the Couzen's committee, President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio testified that he would not discharge any labor as a result of consolidation. He explained that the economies from consolidation would be brought about gradually and that the number of employes would not be displaced faster than death, resignations and discharges for cause would deplete the labor force.

Representatives of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines gave similar testimony. Moreover, they agreed to reimburse, to a reasonable extent, employes owning real estate for losses incurred in having to sell or transfer their homes.

Mr. Lisman adds:

"Having done a constructive piece of work, it is to be hoped that labor unions will not carry the agitation further. If employes of the big lines are insured against loss of employment and homes, labor will greatly benefit by consolidation, because, not only do employes of short lines receive a lower rate of compensation, but they have to do a greater amount of work.

* * *

"The recent decision of the Supreme Court instructing the I. C. C. practically to disregard the Hoch-Smith resolution for giving preferential low rates to agricultural products, is rather a sharp reminder to the commission that it must stick to the letter of the Act of 1920.

"It would be my guess that the more radical Congress likely to be elected next November, but which will not take office until December, 1931, will certainly endeavor to change the law—with a view to making campaign material for the presidential election of 1932.

"Meanwhile, there probably will be no serious objection to the Missouri Pacific merger plan. The committee has assented in principle to B. & O.'s acquiring the Reading and Jersey Central, but formal hearings will be required.

"There is a petition pending before the commission to compel the Pennroad, affiliated holding company of the Pennsylvania, to disgorge control of the Lehigh Valley, Wabash, Pittsburgh, West Virginia and Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, which that company has acquired. Some interesting legal problems are involved.

"Commingled with this proceeding is the proposed Fifth Trunk Line system, which is impossible without the Pittsburgh & West Virginia and the Wheeling & Lake Erie, the former dominated by the Pennroad, the latter by the Van Sweringens.

"Much fault is found with the commission for not acting more quickly, but the questions involved are so complex and many sided that quick action cannot be taken."

That brings you up to date on what's what mergerwise in the railway field.

The long awaited for fight has arrived. Tonight at 9:30 Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, and Max Schmeling, of Germany will engage in a fifteen-round bout for the world's heavyweight crown at the Yankee Stadium in New York city.

Since the exact time of the beginning and of the termination of the fight is not known, the broadcast coming over the NBC wires heard locally from WEEI and WBZA, will begin at 9:30. If a knockout results in the early part of the contest, another program is ready to go on.

A special feature of the broadcast will be the inovation of a description of the social high lights of the affair by Miss Carmen Ogden, a reporter. Other news writers and sports experts will give their impressions over the air before the battle starts.

CONCERNING RADIO

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

With such tremendous interest in everything pertaining to radio and broadcasting these days, it seems that about every man, woman and child in the country is a potential entertainer of some sort. At least a great many of our otherwise sane and sober citizens aspire to "get on the air."

It is true that from the ranks of non-professionals, or the layman class, have arisen radio entertainers and announcers whose names are a household word, and whose remuneration is something to boast about. But the really high-salaried broadcaster is more apt to be one who has already made a reputation in another field.

When radio was first out of the experimental stage, and the program director of a station was many times at a loss how to fill in the hours of broadcasting, about anybody who could talk, sing or play an instrument was allowed to broadcast. Perhaps it was not so interesting to the listener, but the people broadcasting and the station operators had a good time.

Gradually as commercial accounts supplied their own programs paying such talent as their means would afford, broadcasting entertainment became a serious business and attracted at first, stage and concert artists of mediocre ability, and later the very cream of our country's entertainers.

How many times we have been asked how one goes about getting a chance to broadcast either as an announcer or as part of the program. Perhaps it may be one who has a really fine voice; it may be a musician who plays superbly some instrument; or it is sometimes one with a gift for story telling. But whatever the talent in most cases the ambitious one's circle of friends have imbued them with courage, and the idea that they are just made for radio. All they wish is a chance to prove their worth.

We are not going to give advice; nobody wants it. But we will state that getting into the radio game now is a tough proposition. Success in crashing the gate into that field depends upon just how determined one is to get there. We refer, of course, to the amateur entertainer. Like everything else in life a certain element of luck enters into the project; but if you really have ability, musical or vocal, somewhere there may be a cabin window unlocked through which you may crawl. Try it.

Information hasn't reached our office as yet whether or not "Farmer" Jack Sharkey has been invited to broadcast over some one of Boston's stations, and tell how he won his fight—if he does win. But it's a pretty safe bet that Schmeling will not entertain radio fans; he's good with his fists, all right, but rather weak on the English. Ho, hum—sort o' too bad.

We hope you will listen in tonight at 6:30, to what we believe is going to be a mighty good 15-minute program. The Cosmo Crooners will be on the air over WHDH, with a novel presentation of college songs; their first bow to a New England radio audience. These boys appear through the courtesy of the International Magazine Co.

At the Radio Dial

A CONCISE AND THOROUGH explanation of why we should ratify the London naval treaty by the man who was instrumental in making it, will come to us tonight at 9:30 over WNAC on the National Radio Forum. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State will explain many things that have been puzzling Americans. Meanwhile, the treaty has been agreed upon by President Hoover and the country awaits the decision of the Senate. Stimson's speech tonight will be of great significance and interest to Americans and members of the Senate.

The Defiance Tire electrically transcribed "spot" broadcast, the eighth in the series, will be on the air tonight from 10 to 10:15 over station WBZ-WBZA. The theme of this entertainment will be taken from a romantic Spanish tale where in "Cid," that celebrated warrior, delivered his country from the Moors and whose heart is lost to the lovely but haughty Chimene.

R. C. A. FANS will not be cheated out of a program tonight on account of the Sharkey-Schmeling duel, for at the conclusion of the set-to Mme. Schumann-Heink, Richard Crooke and Frank Crumit will sing over WEEI. Mme. Schumann-Heink, who has been one of the world's most famous contraltos for thirty years, will sing Nevins' "The Rosary" and Arditi's "Bolero," "Flower Song," from "Carmen," and Herbert's "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," are among Richard Crooks' contributions. Frank Crumit lends a humorous touch to the program when he sings, among others, "The Prune Song" and "The Gay Caballero."

WILL THE CAMEL Pleasure Hour outdo its predecessors, the Old Gold Hour and the Lucky Strike Hour? Let us analyze these nicotine programs and see. Paul Whiteman's Old Golds brought their hour to a close a few weeks ago after a year of faithful work. They did not create the popularity most people expected. They said his program was not varied; did not have the glamor Whiteman and his orchestra have on the stage. Righto, but on the whole Whiteman was unappreciated. His symphonic arrangements which surpass all other orchestras fell on partly deaf ears.

B. A. Rolfe's Lucky Strike Orchestr. when first inaugurated was a complete hit, but lately he has fallen from his high perch. The real judges, you not I, say his music is monotonous and droning, and that his program never varies.

THE CAMEL Pleasure Hour last night presented their second program, and are before the jury box. Over WBZA at 9:30, Wednesdays, they present a diverse program in which everyone finds something he likes. There is a chorus of voices, humor, duets, singing of classical music, orchestral jazz, and almost every other form of entertainment. In other words Camels generalize—and will succeed; Whiteman and Rolfe have specialized in straight orchestration—and have fallen or are falling by the wayside. The Camel Hour has the right idea.

IT IS ALWAYS comforting to turn to WEEI at 8:30 on Wednesday nights, for in the Mobiloil program one finds superb entertainment. Last night they presented their usual brand of excellent music, with better than average Lois Bennett, and Tascha Zayde as guest artists.

Tosh goes on stirring the Bovril.

"Boyish my ear," she snaps. "Take your Bovril and shut up. I hate being lousy, I don't care a curse what I look like."

There is a silence. Tosh stirs the Bovril fiercely and passes it round. In the fifth bed Etta Potato snores peacefully through everything. Her real name is Etta Potter, but someone dubbed her Etta Potato the day she came out, and Etta Potato she will be for the duration.

She is a good-natured soul, phlegmatic, law-abiding, and totally devoid of nerves or imagination. She could sleep on a clothes-line suspended by pegs from the ears, and was as good-tempered as though she had rested in a soft feather bed.

"Bovril!"

The Bug thrusts a biscuit into the parted lips of Etta Potato and she wakes, smiles amiably, and begins to chew without inquiry. The Bug is the most interesting member of our communal life—to me. Chiefly because she is a mystery. We know about the others—The B. F.'s father is a motor manufacturer; Etta Potato is a virgin war widow, her husband went straight from the register office to the trenches and was killed a week later. Tosh has been in the picture papers so often she hasn't a shred of private life left; Skinny is the only child of a big pot at the War Office; while I am the nondescript daughter of a nondescript father who made money, sold his business, retired, and is spending the rest of his life in a big house on Wimbledon Common trying to forget the word "jam." (How father must hate the "plum-and-apple" jokes that are flying around.) But of The Bug we know nothing. She is quite tiny, wiry, tragic-eyed and dark, with a bitter mouth and a disconcerting trick of saying nothing at all that irritates Commandant to the point of insanity. She is quite the most silent girl in company I have ever met, but sometimes when we are alone, a rare thing in this communal bedroom, she talks on and on in a flat monotonous voice as though she hated the world and was thinking her hatred out loud. Her name, The Bug, originated from the quaint, round-shouldered way she hunches up behind the steering.

"What was supper like, Tosh?" asks Etta Potato.

Tosh tells her in one graphic word and The B. F. clutches her bosom dramatically, and cries, "Tosh!" Tosh christened her The B. F. but we are quite convinced that, although flattered at being on nick-name level with the niece of an earl, she hasn't the vaguest notion that the cryptic letters signify anything other than her own initials—Bertina Farmer.

HUB AGENTS NAB 2 IN NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., June 12—Federal narcotic agents from Boston, who for three months have been working under cover in an effort to break up a drug and white slave ring here, arrested a man and a woman today but failed to take the ring leaders into custody.

Existence of the ring and of the federal authorities' activities was disclosed when Mrs. Vincenzia Rose and Balford Caldas were taken into custody for violation of the narcotics act.

Two undercover agents from Boston had worked with the ring several weeks in the hope of making wholesale arrests, but they were suspected by the gang and the federal authorities were forced to act at once.

London Treaty Will Not Relieve the 'Crushing Burdens of Taxation'

One of the spurious arguments urged by the ratificationists of the London naval treaty is that it will relieve this country of a "crushing burden of taxation." As a matter of fact the treaty does not limit the COST of our navy, but only the kind and character of our navy.

Furthermore only a minute proportion of the taxes now paid by the American people go toward providing and maintaining a navy to protect their commerce, uphold their rights, and defend their territory.

Too many Americans have been misled in this matter by those internationalists who are opposed to national defense.

AS A MATTER OF FACT THE TOTAL CIVIL COSTS OF OUR FEDERAL, STATE, AND MUNICIPAL GOVEENMENTS FROM 1913 TO 1927 INCREASED FROM ABOUT $40 PER CAPITA TO NEARLY $98, while in the same period the cost of our navy increased only from $2 per capita per annum to less than $2.75 per capita.

Therefore, if the administration is genuinely desirous of alleviating "the crushing burden of taxation," it will strike at THE INCREASE OF $58 PER CAPITA PER ANNUM IN THE COST OF CIVIL GOVERNMENT IN THE LAST FOURTEEN YEARS INSTEAD OF AT THE SEVENTY-FIVE-CENT INCREASE FOR NAVAL PROTECTION OF OUR PEOPLE AND OUR COUNTRY.

An added increase in the tax burden will come if the pending Grundy-Smoot-Hawley tariff bill is enacted into law.

If that bill becomes a law, its extortionate rates will increase the tax burden of the American people by one thousand million dollars each year.

And if Congress fails to purge that measure of its more flagrant features, the opportunity will be offered the administration to strike a real blow at the tax burden by vetoing that bill.

Rushing the London naval treaty to ratification will neither prevent other countries from increasing their naval armaments nor reduce the costs of naval armaments required by the United States.

Hasty ratification of this treaty will only curtail the freedom of the Congress to provide and maintain an American navy suited to American needs, and will leave this country dependent on an American navy dictated by British and Japanese desires.

Surgery on the Amazon

"Barbarous," But Effective

Llewellyn Williams, leader of the Peruvian division of the Marshall Field expedition to the Amazon, returned to Chicago recently with a story that makes you wonder whether there is anything new under the sun. The primitive Indian tribes dwelling along the headwater of the Amazon have perfected a system of surgery that suits them as well as a modern hospital practice suits us.

"The natives of this region show great originality and dexterity in the treatment of wounds and illness," Mr. Williams reports. "Trees, shrubs and plants with medicinal properties are widely employed, and a surgical handicraft in which certain insects are used has been developed.

"In the case of a gaping wound, a certain ant which has very powerful jaws is sought, and the insect is made to bite the severed edges of the cut skin. In the operation the ant surgeon loses its own life, for after it has drawn the skin close with its jaws its body is snipped off, and the lifeless head remains until the wound is healed."

The Indians also use ginger as a local anaesthetic and dried banana leaves for bandages. Serious wounds heal in a week, says Mr. Williams.

These methods have been in use in this remote corner of South America for centuries. They are more "modern" than many surgical practices in vogue in Europe and this country fifty or seventy-five years ago.

Not all wisdom is confined to the white race, apparently. We give our discoveries elaborate scientific names, however, while the poor Indian probably calls an ant an ant, and lets it go at that. He is hopelessly unprogressive.

Airmail Port of Entry

Boston Deserves to Be Designated

Boston has every potentiality for becoming the great airmail port of entry of the United States.

It is half a day nearer to Europe, and therefore to the route of our inbound mail.

Its landing fields are adjacent to the coast, and their expansion by the development of Governors Island is but a step in the immediate future.

The North German Lloyd realizes these possibilities and advantages. It estimates that mail catapulated by plane from a westbound steamer to Boston can be delivered in Chicago six hours before the same steamer actually arrives in New York.

Let us make the best of it by all joining hands to prevail upon the Washington administration to designate the East Boston Airport as a port of entry for mail. Your Congressman should be told about this by you.

Fees Should Be Abolished

Congressman Treadway would abolish the admission fee to the historic estate of General Washington at Mount Vernon. Too, he would abolish its Sunday closing, which now denies its beauty and patriotic inspiration to thousands who could view it on no other day.

Let us derive a local lesson from this activity of our Massachusetts Congressman.

Our own patriotic shrines are innumerable. Our Summer visitors will come to us by the hundreds of thousands, drawn by our scenic wealth and by our Tercentenary celebration at the hallowed scenes of early history. Fees are a nuisance, more often than not. Let us give our visitors free entrance to these shrines in so far as it is in our power.

WRONG FORMULA

By NELSON HARDING

"Double, double toil and trouble,"
After all the boil and bubble
That strange mixture in the kettle
Absolutely will not settle.

Blowing up and boiling over,
It destroys both pot and cover.
After ten years in the making
It's a hopeless undertaking.

What Is 'Indecorous' About This Picture?

We Should Call It "VERY" Decorous in These Days

BRITAIN HAS REJECTED THIS, AS "INDECOROUS"

Mr. Richard Jack, member of the British Royal Academy, painted this pretty picture and called it "Love Tunes the Shepherd's Reed."

It was purchased for the public art gallery of the town of Sunderland, and because it was sold to a public gallery the artist charged a reduced price—$1750.

Then, to his amazement, and possibly to yours when you read this, the town council decided that they wouldn't take the picture at any price, because it was "indecorous."

In fact if they could see some of the ladies in their boxes at the opera, to say nothing of other ladies lying on the sand at Palm Beach and elsewhere, they would call this a highly MORAL picture, old-fashioned and mid-Victorian.

You may say of the artist what is said in the Bible: "The heart knoweth his own bitterness."

The artist knows his own intention. He knows what he is trying to do, he knows what effect he means to produce on the minds of others,

And those that see his work immediately know what was in HIS mind.

A good intention produces a good work of art; evil intention produces an evil work of art.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

As we pass the Animal Kingdom in review, turning from the simpler to the more complex, we see that the abilities to regenerate and to reproduce sexually fall off as the body gets more elaborately specialized.

A newt or a lobster can regenerate limbs, but not much more than that. We ourselves can regenerate very little. The healing of a wound, the growth of new skin over a cut, the setting of a broken bone, the repair of a torn muscle or tendon—these are the last vestiges in our own bodies of this strange regenerative capacity.

H. G. Wells

This is all that remains to us of the reproductive power that can make the severed flatworm into two individuals.

3. The Graft and the Chimaera

Man, we noticed, can do curious things with the normal rhythm of life. He can imitate fertilization and sexless reproduction. We turn now to an even more striking interference—to the mixing together of organisms of different kinds to form one.

It is well known that branches of plants can be grafted on to other plants, and that they will take and "become one flesh." But grafting is possible with animal tissues, too.

John Hunter in the eighteenth century succeeded in grafting a cock's spur and a piece of chick's leg to another fowl's comb, and had the satisfaction of seeing them continue to live and grow.

Almost any organ of an embryo or any young and soft-bodied animal can be grafted anywhere else on the anatomy of the same or another creature of the same kind and will "take" and grow.

A tadpole's growing limb or the regenerating leg-bud of a newt will grow after grafting on to the head or the flank, and will sprout out toes and turn into a well-formed leg quite happily.

An eye-rudiment taken from one salamander embryo and stuck on to the flank of another grows into a normal looking eye (though, of course, the animal can never see with it) and will even change its color and shape, as do the animal's own eyes, when the host changes from tadpole to land-salamander. And with very young embryos, whole regions, or even whole animals, can be grafted.

Double tadpoles stuck back to back or belly to belly have been artificially produced, and will feed and grow and turn into double frogs. Moths, too, can be grafted while in the chrysalis stage, and each part will go on growing in its appointed way.

By this means the most bizarre monsters can be created, such as two tail-ends joined in the middle, or a tandem moth with four pairs of wings.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, June 12—A great city such as New York provides many unusual ways—spare my blushes!—of keeping the lupus from the lintel. One firm, for instance, has the window washing concession in a skyscraper area downtown, and is said to net a profit of $150,000 a year.

Furnishing programs to theaters free has lifted a gentleman to the multi-millionaire ranks. And it is Broadway history that the Sussknd brothers—three alert Jewish boys—began as hat checkers at the Hotel Astor and made a huge fortune by gaining control of the hotel and cafe hat checking concessions.

There is a man who has the monopoly on the purchase of empty bottles in hotels and restaurants of importance. And what was—and probably is—the small town boy's method of earning enough money to see the circus has become an enormous business.

The gross turnover in empty bottles in New York is a quarter of a million dollars. Down town an enterprising shoe shiner acquired the bootblacking privileges in a number of crowded office buildings. He became a sort of padrone with an army of industrious shiners doing the elbow work.

The Big Shine, in smart clothes makes the rounds in his car at intervals to see that things are running smoothly, and is reputed to enjoy an income of $25,000 a year. A country boy who conceived the idea of stands for out-of-town daily newspapers is also amazingly prosperous.

Recently a discharged hotel valet opened up a valet service for bachelors. For $10 a week he and his assistants attend to a customer's pressing wants. Buttons are restored, shoes are shined, sox mended and so on. He already has more than 1000 customers.

These are only a few instances where specialization in an age of specialization brought home the bacon. A great industrial thinker recently observed: "Every job, no matter how humble, is an avenue of success, if the holder uses his head as well as his hands." Sounds Horatio Algerish—but it has been proven true.

Thousands, too, in New York live solely by wits. No other city offers such grand opportunities for the O. Henry type of gentle grafter. Paper Collar Poe, a confidence expert of the '90's, observed: "Give me a silk hat and gold-headed cane and I'll live in New York handsomely and indefinitely without work." The idea clicks today by substituting spats and a monocle.

A strip of Lenox avenue is now the Harlem Rialto. Performers from the Black Belt's cabarets and the down town colored shows gather there to promenade just as they do in Times Square. A leafy tree in the section is a rendezvous. New York's most successful play this season has an all-colored cast, and the black-and-tan cafes have enjoyed their greatest prosperity the past winter—thus Harlem's Rialto is bubbling with high spirits.

"If you don't think husbands," postcards Mrs. M., Seattle, "are a general nuisance, just ask your wife."

What a coincidence! This is No Talking to Husbands Day in the family. And all I did was leave my spoon in the coffee cup at a dinner last night.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Sail On! Sail On!

Want to do something with your life, don't you, stranger? Want to be different from the common, contented herd?

Braver — more adventurous? And, in your secret heart you feel you are different . . . feel that you could do something strong and splendid, if you had a chance. But . . . You get so discouraged, don't you? People make it so hard for anyone who's different. Keep telling you you'll fail. Sneer and laugh at you if you do fail. Until you cry, "Oh, what's the use? I'd love to break away—be free—amount to something—but it isn't worth the effort. Why not be content with things as they are?"

Elsie Robinson

That the way you feel, friend? I know. I've felt that way, too. Perhaps this story will help you as it helped me. They tell it of Columbus and that mad voyage beyond the world's blue rim. You and I, casually computing about the globe, cannot possibly realize what the voyage meant to the people of 1492. Land beyond the horizon? Impossible! The earth was flat—any sane person knew that. It was insanity, blasphemy to doubt it. Black void and the tortures of hell awaited the man who challenged that belief. Yet, somehow, he convinced a few of them—and at last set sail.

Such a little ship in that vast and trackless ocean! Day after day, day after day, and still no land. So presently terror, more vast than the ocean, descended on his crew. They begged and clamored that he turn back. They threatened violence—mutiny. But Columbus would not turn. To all their threats and pleadings he had but one reply —"Sail on! SAIL ON!"

Confident words, but how confident was he in his heart. Not confident at all, probably. As afraid, as lonely, as desperate as he men who whimpered and snarled about him. But of what use was life unless a man kept faith with himself and his own adventure? Death ahead? Perhaps. But wasn't a brave death better than cowardly surrender? To him it was. He could not determine whether success or failure lay beyond the horizon, but he could at least be master of his own fears. Whatever the cost he could cry—"Sail on! SAIL ON!"

You know the rest. At last—the land! And now all land is mapped for you and me. Yet, still, for all of us, there waits an unknown sea. Some venture beyond our common, charted life—some dangerous risk that challenges the soul. A tie to break—a move to make—

And other people don't understand. They say you're crazy to do it. They sneer and warn and hinder—as they sneered at and warned and hindered Columbus. How often he, too, must have wondered if it was all worth while. And yet he cried—"SAIL ON!"

Echo his cry! Don't turn back! Shape your course and stick to it! And to the sneers and threats—the snarls of the crowd, the weak, weary whimpering of your own heart—make but one answer—"SAIL ON!"
